Circleville district merchants.

Many came away from the institute pronouncing it the most novel event of its kind ever presented in Circleville.

"The Midway", as the first program of the Cook's Carnival was called, featured a cast of three food specialists headed by Miss Esther Roehm, food lecturer. Miss Dorothy Duncan, local representa-

a model kitchen setting in a attractive. Home makers in at-

The Vichy government at the

The Mendoza attempted to run

More Pupils Returning To

Epidemic Abates

CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Attendance figures in Circleville and most Pickaway County schools were rapidly on their way to normalcy Tuesday, as the influenza epidemic which closed Circleville and all but five county schools last week appeared to be abating.

Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, said that 113 more pupils reported for classes Tuesday than Monday, the absente list dropping to 234.

Conditions in most county schools were also reported improv-

Monday. Monroe and Washington schools closed Monday after call-ance figures. Both will try to reopen Thursday.

Only schools in the county to remain open during the entire week were Derby, Scioto, Walnut, Ashville and Madison.

Other Schools Open

Schools in other vicinities of central Ohio reopened Monday after influenza epidemics appeared to be on the wane. Washington
C. H. schools and other schools in Fayette County, closed last week, reopened and reported absences in most classes less.

Lancaster schools and those of Fairfield County reopened and reported the epidemic well under control. Lancaster public schools reported 500 absentees Monday compared with 700 last Monday.

Liberty Union, Berne Union and Thurston schools closed again Monday, the first two for the remainder of the week and Thurston until Thursday. Schools at Litho-polis and Rushville are operating on regular schedules.

Attendance in Chillicothe schools Monday was 50 percent better than last week, Superintendent
M. M. Berry reported, and abatement of the malady reopened five of the seven Ross County rural schools, including Centralia, Southeastern, Huntington, Clarksburg and Buckskin.

"SORRY, old man, but you can't go along today!" It's President Roosevelt, going to his inauguration, speaking. Falla, the oath of office a third time. So the pet stayed home.

Eighteen Fishermen Lose Lives, Five Are Rescued In Tragic Harbor Wreck

Trawler Strikes Submerged Object Inside Boston Area, Goes To Bottom; Many Of Victims Trapped Below Decks

BOSTON, Jan. 21—Eighteen Boston fishermen met death and five, who alternately yelled and prayed three hours clinging to the masts as their mates dropped one by one into the icy sea, were saved in a dramatic shipwreck just inside Boston Harbor today.

Inward bound with 50,000 pounds of mixed fish and coated with ice, the beam trawler Mary E. O'Hara struck a submerged object—probably a barge, and slowly went to the bottom.

Some of the crew of 23 in command of Captain Fred Fisher, who was among the lost, were trapped in their bunks.

But those who fled to the masts saw ships pass in the distance,
but were unable to attract their attention until after dawn when the trawler North Star discovered their plight.

The fishermen first tried to launch dories. The small craft were frozen to the decks, and it was impossible to break through the ice with axes. With the decks under water they fled to the masts.

The scene of the shipwreck was off Finn's Ledge, near Graves Light, in the outer harbor, three miles off the Winthrop Shore.

RUSSIA BLAMED FOR BATTLE OF CHINESE FORCES

LONDON, Jan. 21—Four thousand Chinese Communist troops were killed and wounded in a giant nine-day battle after Soviet Russia "double-crossed" Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and ordered the Communists to attack the Chungking forces, authoritative British quarters disclosed today.

In the first clear-cut revelation of what has been taking place in China's interior during the last two weeks, members of parliament reported receiving cabled advices from British observers at Hongkong, disclosing that the clash between the two Chinese armies was on a large scale.

AIM OF BRITAIN TO END TYRANNY TOLD TO SOLONS

LONDON, Jan. 21—For the time being at least, Great Britain's war aim is simply to put an end to Nazi tyranny, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told
the House of Commons today.

He rejected an appeal for some fuller exposition of this nation's war objectives.

In reply to a question on the general subject of war aims,
Churchill said:

"Most right-minded people here
and abroad — especially in the United States—already fully understand the causes and principles
for which we are waging war against Nazi tyranny."

"His Majesty's government is always on the outlook for any opportunity of making a statement which would be helpful to our victory and to liberation of nations

ASSASSINATION IRKS PRO-NAZI IRON GUARDISTS

Various Advices Declare Reich May Move Into Greater Power

KILLER PUT TO DEATH

Radicals Blame Officials
For Delay In Clearing Up Shooting

BUDAPEST, Jan. 21—Special Romanian guards were rushed to protect the homes of German army officers in Bucharest tonight as a temporary calm followed a day of wild rioting reportedly staged by "dissident Communists" and Iron Guard-ists.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 21—Major disorders which may require energetic measures of suppression by the German army, raged throughout Romania today following assassination of Major Doehring, German general staff officer and member of the Nazi military mission in Bucharest.

The disturbances were pro-German in origin and resulted from indignation among Iron Guardists against officials whose negligence was blamed for the slaying.

But apparent inability of Romanian authorities to restore order led to growing belief in Bucharest that the German high command would order a stronger Nazi military grip on the whole country to put an end to almost chaotic conditions which have prevailed there for weeks.

Slayer Executed

A former Greek boxing champion Axioti, the alleged slayer, was arrested last night and executed this morning by a firing squad, according to advices reaching Budapest.

(A German official news agency (DNB) dispatch from Bucharest said Romanian Premier
Ion Antonescu notified the German minister at Bucharest that Doehring's assassin would be executed by a firing squad "as soon as his hearing is finished.")

(This dispatch said the Romanian government also ordered arrest of ten prominent members of the Greek colony on grounds that Axioti was regarded as a Greek.
It was stated, however, that he entered Romania on a "Turkish passport.")

(DNB also reported that units

1,500 OF REICH'S WAR PLANES NOW ON DUCE'S SOIL

LONDON, Jan. 21—German aid is pouring into Italy in a vast scale and the Nazi Luftwaffe taking the place of the Italian air force in warfare against the British, the London News Chronicle reported today in a Lisbon dispatch.

Quoting an informant who arrived at Lisbon after spending nine months in Italy, the newspaper said about 1,500 German planes now are in Italy, including German troop transport planes formerly used in the Norwegian campaign.

These planes are now being used to carry Italian troops, light tanks and other equipment to Tripoli to re-equip Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army, the dispatch said.

It added the principal German air bases in Italian territory are situated at Bari, Syracuse, Cata-nia and Trapani. According to the informant, no German troops are in Italy as yet aside from the Nazi airmen.

BLACKOUTS ORDERED AT ENGINE HOUSE; CANDLES TO PROVIDE SOME LIGHT

So seriously did Circleville
firemen consider economy
measures taken by City Council, they resolved to turn on no lights at their headquarters on East Franklin Street, and since Saturday have been passing the evenings in total darkness.

Harold Defenbaugh, East
Main Street, who finds himself hanging around the fire station
occasionally, presented firemen
Monday evening with some candlesticks, including the candles, to prevent total "black outs" at the station.

To Mr. Defenbaugh firemen
write:

"The firemen extend their heartfelt thanks for the beautiful candle sticks, so deeply appreciated in their hour of need, and extend an invitation to him to join them in their candlelight services, held each evening at 7."

Firemen now are wondering where they are going to get money to buy candles.

BIG OFFENSIVE ON AT TOBRUK

Attempt To Take Duce's
African Base

LONDON, Jan. 21—British forces in North Africa today opened a major offensive against the Libyan port of Tobruk, main Italian stronghold on the coastal road
to Benghazi.

An official announcement said:
"An attack was launched on Tobruk early this morning."

"Operations are proceeding satisfactorily."

At the same time, it was announced that British forces in the Kassala area are vigorously pursuing Italian forces withdrawing eastward into Eritrea.

In the Metemma area, enemy
artillery and aircraft were active
"without causing any relaxation
of our pressure," it was said.

TAFT TAKES LEAD TO CHANGE F. D.'S LEND-LEASE BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—A bipartisan substitute for President Roosevelt's "lend-lease" bill to aid Great Britain began taking form today.

While the substitute is being framed chiefly by Republicans, leaders in the movement hoped to enlist dissent Democrats in both branches of congress.

The proposed substitute, it was learned, is based on these points:

1. Aid to Great Britain by loans or exchanges, with the aid figure tentatively fixed at $2,000,000,000.
2. Elimination of discretionary power given Mr. Roosevelt in the bill to transfer ships and other war weapons or articles.
3. Give Britain complete freedom to order from American manufacturers, subject to priority for American defense materials.

Effect of this proposal, leaders said, is to assure passage of a bill giving Great Britain "utmost aid," with the main fight centering on the alleged dictatorial power given President Roosevelt.

"This is the problem," said one of those participating in conferences on a substitute bill. "We want to aid England. We want to keep out of war. We think we can provide a program on this basis."

Sen. Taft (R) O., assumed leadership in the movement for a substitute measure. Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont. and other Democratic non-interventionists are being consulted.

ZERO HOUR FOR BRITAIN'S FALL REPORTED SET

New Drastic Military And Diplomatic Action
Pledged In Face Of Bellicose Steps By Washington, Duce's Spokesman Says

"CAMPAIGN'S SUCCESS ASSURED"

Increase In Mediterranean Strife Predicted
Following Meeting Of Fuehrer And Ally

ROME, Jan. 21—In the first authoritative Italian disclosure of the nature of yesterday's conference between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini, Virginio Gayda, Il Duce's journalistic spokesman, today reported that the two axis leaders decided on new drastic military and diplomatic steps to counter the "bellicose" American attitude to the war.

These steps, Gayda said, will embrace a "counter-blockade" of the Atlantic, intensification of German air attacks on the British Isles, and an increase in the tempo of warfare in the Mediterranean. Both dictators were said to have reached an "identity of views" on these points.

Although not mentioning
the United States by name, Gayda declared that the present phase of the war was characterized by "embitterment and bellicose currents from overseas."

BERLIN, Jan. 21—Chancellor
Hitler's conference with Premier Mussolini "has guaranteed utmost success of the final campaign" by
the axis powers, the German radio stated today in a broadcast interpreting results of the meeting.

In Complete Accord

Referring to Hitler's prediction of final victory in 1941, the announcer continued:

"Both the Fuehrer and Premier Mussolini are in complete accord on how to fight England. The meeting was a bad omen for our enemies . . . .

"England is awaiting the spring
with grave concern. The meeting signifies collapse of the old order and construction of a new world order."

The "zero hour" for Britain's defeat was set during the conference, spokesmen said.

Qualified spokesmen, discussing the Hitler-Mussolini meeting, took the firm view that "England's days are now numbered."

"The one and only purpose of the conference," a spokesman said, "was to assure that everything is ready for the victory anticipated for this year."

"This means that future steps to achieve the victory were decided on."

"All other matters are secondary. The axis is conducting this war against England with both military and diplomatic weapons,
ensuring that the pen will not

BRICKER TALKS OF OHIO'S ROLE TO AID DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Gov.
John W. Bricker of Ohio remained in the capital today to discuss with federal officials means whereby his state may aid in the National Defense program.
He was expected to return to Columbus tonight.

Bricker was guest of honor at a dinner given in the Mayflower Hotel last night by the Ohio Republican delegation in congress.
Also present was Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, Ohio's Democratic congressman and the state legislature's delegation to the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

The Republican governor of Ohio rode in the inaugural parade and later attended a White House reception given by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

European Bulletins

BERLIN—The German govern-of a message from Secretary of State Cordell Hull expressing regrets for the Nazi flag incident in San Francisco. The case, however is not yet closed, a Nazi spokesman said.

VICHY — "More alarming" frontier developments along the border between Thailand and French Indo-China were reported today in official advices received in Vichy. For the last 12 days, these dispatches said, there have been major military preparations along the frontier and heavy troop infiltrations in the Loung, Prabang and Pakse areas.

KENNEDY WARNS AGAINST CONVOY AS "DANGEROUS"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, today warned congress that convoying would mean war for the United States, disclosed that as the U. S. envoy to London he had never been advised of Britain's "war aims," and expressed surprise at the English claim that they would not need an American Expeditionary Force in 1941.

Appearing as an opposition witness to President Roosevelt's lease-lend bill, Kennedy told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that by supplying U. S. convoys for British merchantmen, this nation might be placed in the posi-

BARBER POLE SMASHED BY BAKERY TRUCK DOOR

The barber pole in front of Millions' barber shop, North Court Street, was knocked from its pedestal and demolished early Tuesday when it was struck by a bakery truck driven by Earl S. Arnold, New Holland. Damage to the pole, estimated at $85, is covered by insurance.

Arnold told Patrolman Alva Shasteen that as he turned from Main onto Court Street, the door of his truck swung open and hooked the pole.

dramatic shipwreck just inside Boston Harbor today.

Inward bound with 50,000 pounds of mixed fish and coated with ice,
the beam trawler Mary E. O'Hara struck a submerged object—probably a barge, and slowly went to the bottom.

Some of the crew of 23 in command of Captain Fred Fisher, who was among the lost, were trapped in their bunks.

But those who fled to the masts
saw ships pass in the distance,
but were unable to attract their
attention until after dawn when the trawler North Star discovered
their plight.

The fishermen first tried to launch dories. The small craft were frozen to the decks, and it was impossible to break through the ice with axes. With the decks
under water they fled to the masts.

off Finn's Ledge, near Graves Light, in the outer harbor, three miles off the Winthrop Shore.

All But Mast Gone
Scores of craft — Coastguard Patrol boats Raritan and Algonquin, the Boston fire boat, the Boston police boat, fishing vessels, tugs and other craft raced to the scene when the North Star reported the rescue of the five fishermen. But the rescue vessels came too late. They found only the main mast of the Mary E.
O'Hara above the water, and that only four feet.

Meanwhile the North Star was bringing the five survivors, all in critical condition with frozen hands and legs, into Boston fish-pier for quick transfer to Boston City Hospital.

Of the five only one—Gabriel Welsh, 40, East Boston, was able to tell of the shipwreck and how he saw his mates die, one by one.

AIM OF BRITAIN TO END TYRANNY TOLD TO SOLONS

LONDON, Jan. 21 — For the time being at least, Great Britain's war aim is simply to put
Minister Winston Churchill told
the House of Commons today.

He rejected an appeal for some fuller exposition of this nation's war objectives.

In reply to a question on the general subject of war aims,
Churchill said:
"Most right-minded people here
and abroad — especially in the United States—already fully understand the causes and principles
for which we are waging war
against Nazi tyranny."
"His Majesty's government is always on the outlook for any opportunity of making a statement
which would be helpful to our victory and to liberation of nations

BIG OFFENSIVE ON AT TOBRUK

Attempt To Take Duce's
African Base

LONDON, Jan. 21—British forces in North Africa today opened
a major offensive against the Libyan port of Tobruk, main Italian stronghold on the coastal road
to Benghazi.

An official announcement said:
"An attack was launched on Tobruk early this morning."
"Operations are proceeding satisfactorily."

At the same time, it was announced that British forces in the Kassala area are vigorously
pursuing Italian forces withdrawing eastward into Eritrea.

In the Metemma area, enemy
artillery and aircraft were active
"without causing any relaxation
of our pressure", it was said.

A former Greek boxing champion Axioti, the alleged slayer,
was arrested last night and executed this morning by a firing squad, according to advices
reaching Budapest.

(A German official news agency (DNB) dispatch from Bucharest said Romanian Premier
Ion Antonescu notified the German minister at Bucharest that Doehring's assassin would be executed by a firing squad "as soon
as his hearing is finished."

(This dispatch said the Romanian government also ordered arrest of ten prominent members of the Greek colony on grounds that Axioti was regarded as a Greek.
It was stated, however, that he entered Romania on a "Turkish passport."

1,500 OF REICH'S WAR PLANES NOW ON DUCE'S SOIL

LONDON, Jan. 21 — German
aid is pouring into Italy in a vast scale and the Nazi luftwaffe taking the place of the Italian air
force in warfare against the British, the London News Chronicle reported today in a Lisbon dispatch.

Quoting an informant who arrived at Lisbon after spending
nine months in Italy, the newspaper said about 1,500 German planes now are in Italy, including German troop transport planes
formerly used in the Norwegian
campaign.

These planes are now being used to carry Italian troops, light
tanks and other equipment to Tripoli to re-equip Marshal Ro-
dolfo Graziani's army, the dispatch said.

It added the principal German
situated at Bari, Syracuse, Cata-
nia and Trapani. According to the informant, no German troops
are in Italy as yet aside from the Nazi airmen.

BLACKOUTS ORDERED AT ENGINE HOUSE; CANDLES TO PROVIDE SOME LIGHT

So seriously did Circleville
firemen consider economy
measures taken by City Council, they resolved to turn on no
lights at their headquarters on East Franklin Street, and
since Saturday have been passing the evenings in total darkness.

Harold Defenbaugh, East
Main Street, who finds himself
hanging around the fire station
occasionally, presented firemen
Monday evening with some candlesticks, including the candles, to prevent total "black outs" at the station.

write:
"The firemen extend their heartfelt thanks for the beautiful candle sticks, so deeply
appreciated in their hour of need, and extend an invitation
to him to join them in their candlelight services, held each
evening at 7."

Firemen now are wondering where they are going to get money to buy candles.

ZERO HOUR FOR BRITAIN'S FALL REPORTED SET

New Drastic Military And Diplomatic Action
Pledged In Face Of Bellicose Steps By

"CAMPAIGN'S SUCCESS ASSURED"

Following Meeting Of Fuehrer And Ally

ROME, Jan. 21—In the first authoritative Italian disclosure of the nature of yesterday's conference between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini, Virginio Gayda, Il Duce's journalistic spokesman, today reported that the two axis leaders decided on new drastic military and diplomatic steps to counter the "bellicose" American attitude to the war.

These steps, Gayda said, will embrace a "counter-
blockade" of the Atlantic, intensification of German air attacks on the British Isles, and an increase in the tempo
of warfare in the Mediterranean. Both dictators were said to have reached an
"identity of views" on these points.

Although not mentioning
the United States by name, Gayda declared that the present phase of the war was characterized by "embitterment
and bellicose currents from overseas."

BERLIN, Jan. 21—Chancellor
Hitler's conference with Premier Mussolini "has guaranteed utmost success of the final campaign" by
the axis powers, the German radio
stated today in a broadcast interpreting results of the meeting.

In Complete Accord
Referring to Hitler's prediction
of final victory in 1941, the announcer continued:

"Both the Fuehrer and Premier Mussolini are in complete accord
on how to fight England. The meeting was a bad omen for our enemies . . . .

"England is awaiting the spring
with grave concern. The meeting
signifies collapse of the old order
and construction of a new world
order."

The "zero hour" for Britain's defeat was set during the conference, spokesmen said.

Qualified spokesmen, discussing
the Hitler-Mussolini meeting, took
the firm view that "England's
days are now numbered."

"The one and only purpose of the conference," a spokesman said, "was to assure that everything is ready for the victory anticipated for this year."

"This means that future steps
to achieve the victory were decided on."

"All other matters are secondary. The axis is conducting this war against England with both
military and diplomatic weapons,
ensuring that the pen will not

He was expected to return to Co-

COMMISSIONERS NAME MOWERY TO COUNTY JOB

Acting Infirmary Chief
To Serve Permanently
In Position

WIFE TO BE MATRON

Nelson Baker Appointed To Fill Charles Bell's
Term On Board

James E. Mowery, who has been serving as superintendent of the Pickaway County Home since the resignation of W. S. Dunkel, August 1, was placed at the head of the home Monday by the county commissioners.

His position falls under the civil service classification and may be retained as long as he performs his duties, commissioners said. With Mowery's appointment his wife will become matron of the home.

Prior to August 1, when commissioners appointed Mowery temporarily, he worked as a field representative for the Columbus Production Credit Corporation, and had been a tenant on the David Ludwig farm in Circleville Township for about 15 years. His brother, the late H. E. Mowery, was superintendent of the home for nearly 20 years, preceding the appointment of Dunkel.

Dunkel handed his resignation to commissioners after he had been at the home less than a year, illness in his family forcing him to give up his position and return to his farm in Washington Township.

Commissioners selected Mowery after considering another applicant for the position.

The superintendent of the home receives a monthly salary of $85 and the matron $45, besides their room and board. There are three other employees at the home, a farm hand, a cook and a fireman.

Nelson Baker, Jackson Township farmer, was appointed trustee of the Children's Home Monday, filling the unexpired term of the late Charles Bell. Other trustees are Roy S. White, W. M. Beavers, David Dunlap and Charles Schwin.

IRISHMAN IN DENTIST'S CHAIR 10 HOURS TRYING TO GET INTO U. S. ARMY

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—John Shea, 23, had a pair of tired jaws today but he was hopeful his 10½ hour ordeal in the dentist's chair would get him into the regular army with his National Guard company.

He was turned down by army doctors because of bad teeth.

He hoped into Dr. Jacob Rosenblum's dental chair at 10 a. m. yesterday and didn't get off until 8:30 last night.

In the interim he had four teeth filled, three extracted, crowns on five cemented and repaired and two removable bridges installed. As becomes an army man, Shea scorned gas and went through all his suffering with only local anesthesia.

Even if Shea doesn't get into the army he has established a new all-American dental chair occupancy record.

Quail May Be Returned To Ohio Game Bird List

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—After 27 years on the song bird list, the quail may be returned to the game bird list within the next year, it appeared today.

In an unprecedented action, the League of Ohio Sportsmen at its annual convention in Columbus unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing its legislative committee to draw up Bob-White Quail shooting regulations for presentation to the Ohio legislature.

The resolution, presented by Harold Yost, of Youngstown, which was passed amid a roar of cheers and without a dissenting vote, said:

"The League of Ohio Sportsmen believes that the Bob-White Quail should be placed on the game bird list and that the Quail Legislative committee of the league should be authorized to draw up Bob-White Quail shooting regulations in collaboration with the farm and conservation agencies of the state for presentation to the legislature."

Although there is known to be some opposition to the repeal of the Quail-hunting law which was placed into effect in 1913, prominent sportsmen of the state said today they were "sure" the bill would pass if presented to the legislature within the biennium.

According to well-informed sources, the league's legislative committee will recommend limitation of quail hunting to southern and southeastern Ohio states. Tentative plans, the same sources said, call for taking of quail in and south of the following counties: Jefferson, Carroll, Tuscarawas, Holmes, Coshocton, Muskingum, Perry, Fairfield, Hocking, Ross, Clinton, Adams and Butler.

If the latter areas are finally designated, it appears that the heavy-burden of hunting now carried by northwestern Ohio's pheasant would be lifted, thus dividing the hunting over the entire state.

Argument over the quail's status as a song-bird and game-bird has occurred repeatedly in nearly every legislature since 1915. Efforts to return to bird to the game bird lists have usually met with opposition in the house after passing the senate, according to sportsmen.

JAPANESE TOLD THAT GRAVEST CRISIS PREVAILS

TOKYO, Jan. 21—Calling for increased national defenses, Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye warned Japan today that "our empire faces the gravest emergency in its history."

The premier made this statement in an address to the house of peers after Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, appealing to the United States to keep out of war, served notice that the permanent foundation of Nipponese foreign policy is the Tokyo-Berlin-Rome alliance.

Konoye gravely warned the peers that Japan must perfect the national structure devoted to defense by developing to the highest possible degree the total powers of the nation.

He said this would have to be done to procure "sufficient armaments for execution of national policies."

Matsuoka made his speech at the reopening of the 76th session of the Japanese diet (parliament). He made it clear that Japan is resolved to help Italy and Germany by force of arms should any power not now involved in the conflict enter the European war against the axis.

He also warned, in a passage aimed at the United States, that Germany and Italy would aid Japan should any nation not now involved enter the Far Eastern conflict against Nippon.

"My earnest hope," said Matsuoka, "is that a great nation exerting the influence that the United States legitimately exerts will realize her responsibility for maintenance of peace, will reflect deeply on her attitude, and with truly God-fearing piety courageously will liquidate past circumstances and bend utmost efforts towards allaying the anxieties of civilization."

"Should the United States unfortunately become involved in the European war and should Japan be compelled to take part in the conflict, it would bring another great World War both in name and reality."

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

HEAVY WEIGHT CHAMP

Everybody agrees that we should arm. But for what? For defense or offense? To fight abroad or at home?

In 1917 Woodrow Wilson said, "We are to be an instrument in the hands of God to see that liberty is made secure for mankind"! Echoes of this doctrine have reverberated in the White House recently. Wilson's creed led to the poppy fields of France. I fell for it—once!

A year later, July 4, 1918, Mr. Wilson said that our war aim was "The destruction of every arbitrary power anywhere that can separately, secretly, and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world." That sentence ought to be read slowly, pausing on each word.

It was a large order. Mr. Wilson had made his supreme mistake. He had misgauged the common sense of Americans. Within 120 days leadership had suffered a stinging defeat in the congressional elections. And two years later, Senator Harding, a very mediocre gentleman, was elected President by a larger percent of the two party popular vote that F.D.R. ever received.

We are being scared into this war as we were in 1917. As a sample, we have PETTENGILL the official statement that Africa is no farther from South America than Denver from Washington.

From Dakar, South Africa, to Pernambuco, Brazil, is 1,800 miles. Herr Hitler will fly his bombers from Berlin to Dakar, from Dakar to Pernambuco, from Pernambuco to Washington, New York, Chicago and Emporia, Kansas. And blow us into very small bits.

Before we crawl under the bed, kindly beg, borrow or steal a globe, or map of the world. On a world map compare the English Channel, which has not yet been crossed, with the Atlantic and Pacific. Compare Germany with Texas. And measure distances.

From Berlin to Dakar is 2,700 miles; then hop to Pernambuco, 500 miles south of the equator, another 1,800 miles; then as the crow flies, to New York, 4,000 miles. Drop your bombs and hurry back to Pernambuco 4,000 miles, all told 12,500 miles.

Even a saber-rattling Fuehrer can't fly 12,500 miles, heavily loaded with death, without gasoline. Where are his gasoline stations? There is no petroleum in Dakar, on the edge of the Sahara Desert. Scarcely a quart within 2,000 miles.

There is none in Pernambuco, and practically none in all Brazil. But Hitler would have to build storage tanks, refineries, machine shops, air fields, barracks, hospials, wherever his bombers stop. After he gets to Pernambuco he must then go another 2,000 miles to Venezuela and Trinidad for petroleum, and haul it back, a round trip of 4,000 miles, just to have a base to refuel after flying the South Atlantic.

There is no pipe line from Venezuela to Pernambuco. So our war lord would need to move his petrol in ships. His ships would have to come within a few miles of our air and naval bases in the Caribbean. But, of course, that will be easy for Hitler because we will all be shivering under the bedclothes, not daring to find out what he is up to!

But perhaps Hitler will equip his bombers with coal burning engines, with tenders flying behind, like ornaments on a boy's kite. Where will he get his coal? Again, no coal in the Sahara Desert, and none in Pernambuco. Brazil imports enormous quantities of coal from Great Britain, a round trip of 8,000 miles! Her total production of a very inferior coal is only 883,000 tons annually. In 1938 we produced 345,000,000 tons of soft coal and 46,000,000 tons of anthracite. Total, 391,000,000 tons, or 443 times as much as Brazil!

But going back to petroleum, the United States alone produces 1,213,000,000 barrels a year. This is more than twice as much as the rest of the entire world! Sixty-one percent of world total right here at home. And with Venezuela, Trinidad, Mexico, etc., the Western Hemisphere produces 76 percent of world total of the fuel and lubricants of war, or three times as much as all of Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, and all points east.

Meantime, as Adolph gets farther from his base, he gets closer to ours. Anyone who ever played football knows that the going gets tough the nearer you get to the other fellow's goal line. And now that we have gone into the renting business, why not ourselves rent Pernambuco or some other powerful sea and air base near by? Uncle Sam, tenant, to have and to hold! That might save us billions in armaments. And fix it so we wouldn't have the jitters every time war breaks out in Europe.

Americans, we have our choice. We can allow ourselves to be scared into another quixotic crusade to "destroy every arbitrary power anywhere". We can push up more poppies in France. Or we can keep our powder dry and defend this homeland of ours against the world.

Who is this guy Hitler anyway? In his own ring he is a tough little welter weight. But we are the heavy weight champion of the world. And don't let anyone tell you different. Yes, we're fat, and our timing has been bad. But we are The Champ.

And the old one-two is getting ready to click. Any time der Furious gets into our back yard we'll lick him with one hand. And that goes for Benito Carnera and all them foreign champs!

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL.

MERLE TURNER HOME LEVELLED BY NIGHT FIRE

Water From Truck Used To Save Buildings Nearby; Loss Insured

Fire consumed completely the house of Merle Turner, Logan Street extension, Monday night. Discovered by Lon Starkey, a neighbor, about 9 p. m., after the flames already had broken through the dry siding and the building was enveloped by flames when the fire truck arrived.

With the nearest fire hydrant more than a mile away, city firemen stood by helplessly for nearly an hour as the building crumpled and the walls toppled in. Only water available was that in the 150 gallon tank on the fire truck, which firemen reserved for neighboring buildings as showers of sparks fell in the vicinity.

Some of the furniture and household goods was removed, although a large part of it was consumed with the building. The $600 insurance on the building and the $300 on the household goods will nearly cover the damage, Fire Chief Talmer Wise estimated.

None of the Turner family was at home when the fire broke out, which firemen believed started from an overheated stove.

ONE MAN ATTACK ON 'SLOTS' PUTS END TO ACTIVITY

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—As Franklin County's slot machine "war" neared a climax today, one fact became evident: that one sure way to hit a jackpot (at least once) was to use a 12-pound sledge hammer in lieu of coins.

But although Robert H. Warner, Columbus vending machine operator, failed to get the benefit of the jackpots, he claimed his campaign against the devices had resulted in a complete shutdown of slot business in this area.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Jacob E. Sandusky filed affidavits charging Warner and seven other men with "assembling to commit a breach of peace," and four men with exhibiting slot machines. Charges accusing other business men with exhibiting machines were to be filed sometime today, Sandusky said.

It all began Saturday when Warn and seven companions started to avert a walkout.

Cording to witnesses, they walked in, silenced the machines with hammer blows and walked out. They were arrested but released later.

In smashing the machines, Warner charged that Columbus police officers and deputy sheriffs "picked up my machines and left unmolested" those of a rival firm. He added that if he couldn't operate his machines, neither could any other firm.

The sheriff contended that machines of various firms were confiscated following complaints of officials of Whitehall school and a minister. He denied charges of discrimination.

"I shall at all times enforce the law in this county," Sandusky said. "In the even any person has knowledge of a violation thereof my office will act promptly to stop the same."

At any rate, the machines apparently have stopped clicking.

North Star, Veteran U. S. Polar Ship, Heads Southward for Byrd Expedition

U. S. motorship North Star

Map shows 21,000-mile route of the North Star to the Byrd base

By William A. Baker Jr. SEATTLE, Jan. 21—From the top of the world to Little America away "down under," with only a brief layover here, is the log of the United States motorship North Star, en route from this port to the Antarctic to bring back men, dogs and equipment of the Byrd expedition.

"We ought to be back in Seattle by April 15," Lieutenant Commander Isak Lystad, naval reserve officer and master of the North Star, predicted when he took his ship out of Puget Sound. The distance from Seattle to West Base (Little America) is 17,000 miles, and to the East Base, 21,000.

The North Star, regularly operated by the bureau of Indian affairs, department of the interior, returned recently from Point Barrow, Alaska, to which she makes a voyage every summer with supplies for a government hospital and schools on the Arctic coast.

"It is the only vessel that has been as far north and as far south as a ship can go—all in the same year," observed Commander Lystad, who has been on the North Star since 1932. He was commanding officer when the vessel transported men and supplies to the Byrd expedition a year ago, sailing from Boston, November 16.

On this year's voyage out the North Star is scheduled to call at Honolulu, Suva, Fiji Islands and at Dunedin, New Zealand. Then, after Dunedin's dock lights drop astern, she will plow the polar seas for 2,000 miles before her fathometer picks up the coast of the Antarctic continent.

"We should arrive at West Base about January 20," Commander Lystad said. "We will get 30 men there. We hope to reach East Base about the last of February, but it is of course impossible to say exactly when we shall arrive. We are to get 28 men at West Base. "We are bringing all the dogs back, also, but I don't know how many there are now. This ship took 80 dogs down last year, and the U. S. S. Bear had 80. The Bear left Annapolis several weeks ago and is now on her way down again.

Lumber For Docks

The North Star is not taking supplies or provisions for continued maintenance of the Antarctic bases; she is stocked to meet the needs of the men only on the voyage home. Fresh fruit, meat and vegetables will be loaded in New Zealand. The cargo includes a quantity of lumber because there are no docks in Antarctic "ports."

"We use these long planks in loading and unloading supplies," Commander Lystad explained. "The ice is sometimes all broken up where we bring the ship in for loading, and there are crevasses in the ice that have to be bridged."

"I've been told that we're going to leave the snow cruiser at West Base. They intend to take the machinery out of it, and possibly the tires. They'll leave the shell. We'll take aboard a small plane at West Base, too, but will leave the larger ship. In fact, they'll leave one large ship at each base, with a spare motor. Why, I don't know now."

The supply ship is expected to put into West Base without great difficulty unless the weather is particularly bad. But she will have to feel her way around to East Base through almost uncharted rock-strewn waters, making frequent soundings with fathometer and lead.

"Our progress down there necessarily will be quite slow at times," the ship's master said. "We can't take a chance on going ahead when we can't see. There are no charts of most of the waters and it would be very easy to pile a ship on some unknown rock if we didn't proceed cautiously."

The 226-foot wooden vessel was constructed especially for polar voyages. The hull, which is of fir, is 32 inches thick at the bottom and 18 inches at the rails. The ship has 1,500-horsepower Diesel engines and will carry 1,800 tons.

Scandinavian Crew

The North Star is manned by Scandinavian-Americans, all but two of them of Norwegian ancestry. Most of them are in their twenties, and a large percentage are natives of Seattle. A number of them were in the North Star on his first voyage to the Antarctic last year.

The personnel includes a radio operator, a doctor and an ice pilot. The department of interior is represented by an accountant and a press agent.

The North Star was south of Honolulu on Christmas, for the observance of which, in the ship's lounge, a tree was decorated and surrounded with gift packages, 400 of which Commander Lystad will deliver to men at the Antarctic bases.

MERLE TURNER HOME LEVELLED BY NIGHT FIRE

Water From Truck Used To Save Buildings Nearby; Loss Insured

Fire consumed completely the house of Merle Turner, Logan Street extension, Monday night. Discovered by Lon Starkey, a neighbor, about 9 p. m., after the flames already had broken through the dry siding and the building was enveloped by flames when the fire truck arrived.

With the nearest fire hydrant more than a mile away, city firemen stood by helplessly for nearly an hour as the building crumpled and the walls toppled in. Only water available was that in the 150 gallon tank on the fire truck, which firemen reserved for neighboring buildings as showers of sparks fell in the vicinity.

Some of the furniture and household goods was removed, although a large part of it was consumed with the building. The $600 insurance on the building and the $300 on the household goods will nearly cover the damage, Fire Chief Talmer Wise estimated.

None of the Turner family was at home when the fire broke out, which firemen believed started from an overheated stove.

ONE MAN ATTACK ON 'SLOTS' PUTS END TO ACTIVITY

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21 — As Franklin County's slot machine "war" neared a climax today, one fact became evident: that one sure way to hit a jackpot (at least once) was to use a 12-pound sledge hammer in lieu of coins.

But although Robert H. Warner, Columbus vending machine operator, failed to get the benefit of the jackpots, he claimed his campaign against the devices had resulted in a complete shutdown of slot business in this area.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Jacob E. Sandusky filed affidavits charging Warner and seven other men with "assembling to commit a breach of peace," and four men with exhibiting slot machines. Charges accusing other business men with exhibiting machines were to be filed sometime today, Sandusky said.

It all began Saturday when Warn and seven companions started to avert a walkout. According to witnesses, they walked in, silenced the machines with hammer blows and walked out. They were arrested but released later.

In smashing the machines, Warner charged that Columbus police officers and deputy sheriffs "picked up my machines and left unmolested" those of a rival firm. He added that if he couldn't operate his machines, neither could any other firm.

The sheriff contended that machines of various firms were confiscated following complaints of officials of Whitehall school and a minister. He denied charges of discrimination.

"I shall at all times enforce the law in this county," Sandusky said. "In the even any person has knowledge of a violation thereof my office will act promptly to stop the same."

At any rate, the machines apparently have stopped clicking.

OUR TWO-BASED WORLD

PERHAPS it is inevitable that, even in a national and world crisis like the present one, there should be considerable "sound and fury" connected with free government. We seem to be undergoing an experience of this kind at Washington now. And while we might be mistaken about it, we get a general impression that the sound and fury are more evident on Capitol Hill than in humbler centers of government around the country, including about 30,000,000 American homes.

In the great majority of these 30,000,000 centers of government, we fancy, the real masters of this country are not roaring and bellowing at each other. They are just quietly resolved to do what has to be done to keep this nation free, and by a great majority they are convinced that their best bet for continued possession of their own country is cooperation with the country from which this nation got its basic law, culture, institutions and language.

Wendell Willkie, disregarding party politics in a way that follows the famous advice of George Washington against excessive partisanship, urges his fellow-citizens today "in the light of the total situation." Such a standard goes far beyond racial or regional or political considerations.

New occasions not only "teach new duties" but bring new problems. We have to judge of international policy, and choose our international associates, in the light of these times and their tragic needs.

If we threw away, today, the friendship and cooperation of the British Empire, instead of upholding it and making a two-based world of freedom, we would probably regret it all the rest of our national life.

SPEED

"THE big question facing the United States," said Al Smith in his recent broadcast, "is whether or not, without declaring war, we can get war-time production. Up to the present time our people have not taken the situation seriously enough."

It is time that everybody concerned in the whole armament business, from the presidents of manufacturing plants down to the boys who sweep out the shops, began to take the whole situation seriously—for Britain and for ourselves. When Hitler gets ready to do what he intends doing, he will not wait.

Up to a dreary morning that held promise of snow, but that ere long turned into just another reasonably good Winter Day. Had hoped for some steady cold in the belief that it might have an influence in helping discourage the flu bugs. Others remained away for the day in the hope that the absentee roll would extend the holiday. But it didn't, the teachers being smarter than the kids thought.

Kids disliking school are much like many oldsters. Many of us dislike the things we really should do. But if the boys and girls had even an inkling of the value of "acquiring knowledge they would show much more zest in the class rooms. Most of the strenuous physical jobs of low pay rest in the hands of men who either were unable to obtain an education or refused to go to school. And most of the higher pay positions are occupied by school trained men. If boys could only be made to see that school is an investment that pays great dividends. The difference between $16 a week and $50 a week or more is really great. True, some men of little or no education make good and some educated men fail, but the two classes as a whole are really distinct.

U. S. ARMY USES BOMBING FLARES

WASHINGTON—Recently, in a test of equipment at an Army airfield, four parachute flares were shot from the ground. They opened beautifully, but only three ignited. The fourth was a dud.

Several soldiers dashed out to salvage the parachute. They are seldom recovered, because being made of paper they usually burn up in the flare when they reach the ground. The failure of the dud flare to ignite saved this one.

But on retrieving it, imagine the soldiers' surprise to find on the chute the interesting little stamp: "Made in Japan."

The officers of the field also were surprised, but not those in the Ordnance Bureau of the War Department, which purchased the flares. There they weren't surprised, although embarrassed at the discovery leaking out.

One of the firmest tenets of U. S. foreign policy is a "strong" attitude toward Japan. As part of this policy, scrap iron and high octane gasoline were embargoed. Yet the Army Air Corps is using flares, vital in night bombing, whose parachutes are made in Japan.

The salvaged flare was one of a lot of 3,000 purchased several months ago from an Ohio company. Ordnance officials admit they knew the 'chutes of the flares were imported from Japan, but assert they were forced to use them because at that time no U. S. firm made the articles. Also, they say these particular flares are being used for training purposes only.

That may be true, but the statement that no domestic companies made flare parachutes is not. A 5-cent telephone call to the nearby Commerce Department would have supplied the names of several U. S. concerns eager for the business.

Army Ordnance officers say they have stopped the use of Japanese 'chutes in new flares. It would be interesting to see what the next duds, if any, would show.

NO BULLS

There was one occasion during Vice President Henry Wallace's recent triumphal visit to Mexico when he pulled a run-out powder. This was when he was invited to witness a bull fight staged especially in his honor.

Among the Mexican notables Wallace met was Maximino Avila Camacho, influential brother of the new President. Maximino took a big shine to Wallace and invited him to visit the historic State of Puebla, of which he is Governor.

Wallace accepted, but when he heard he was expected to stay in Puebla no less than three days, and that Maximino was rounding up his best bulls and bull-fighters for the occasion, Wallace changed his mind. He had no taste for witnessing a bull fight.

So Wallace resorted to finesse. He announced that a change of plans made it necessary to move up the date of his visit to Maximino. Then he made a quick run to Puebla, lunched with the Governor, and (Continued on Page Six)

Facts About Mouth Infections

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Two common forms of acute trouble in the mouth are (1) canker sores and fever blisters and (2) an acute infection of the gums and inside of the cheek.

Canker sores may be single or multiple; may be on the tongue, the inside of the cheek or on the soft palate. They last from three to five days and are always painful and sometimes quite deep. They are frequently accompanied by fever blisters on the lips, often extending on to the cheeks. Some people seem to be especially susceptible and have recurrences throughout life from factors that we know little about. They are often ascribed to indigestion without much reason. They are probably some form of an infection, perhaps of the nerve ganglia, but it is certain that no immunity develops because one attack is liable to predispose to another.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Alkali Treatment

The best treatment seems to be the use of concentrated alkalies, such as sodium bicarbonate or triple phosphate.

Another form of acute infection of the mouth occurs mostly in children between one and three years. It consists in infection of the gums particularly, which may spread to the inside of the cheeks and soft palate. It begins with fever, general aches, and the patient is really ill for several days. Ulcers appear on the gum margins, which prolong the convalescence.

It should be noted that this form of infection is communicable by eating utensils, dishes and towels and in a household where one case appears, these articles used by the patient should be separated from those of the rest of the household and boiled after use.

Treatment of Gum Infection The treatment which has been found most effective as given by a New York dentist is:

Have the patient rinse the mouth with a mouth wash if he is old enough to do so. Weak peroxide solution is useful. Dobell's solution, diluted half and half, is also good. The kind of mouth wash is not important, but a thorough cleansing should be touched with chronic acid solution, put on cotton applicators. This, however, should be left to a dentist or physician and only employed in the severe cases.

The subject is pertinent because in some communities this year, epidemics of stomatitis of that sort have occurred and it is important when any one case has been discovered to institute preventive precautions as outlined above.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. Y.:—"How long should one wait after a major operation before going to work either as a waitress or a press operator?"

Answer—As long as possible. In other words, as long as economic circumstances permit. I believe that at the least three or four weeks of convalescence should be allowed for any major operation. Better three or four to six months. It takes a long time for adjustments, physical and mental, to be made under such circumstances.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. ## MURDER MAKES A HERO

BY ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

I HAD JUMPED, started, at so many things tonight that I was becoming utterly blasé. That loud ringing of the telephone bell cutting sharply across the end of Jabez's story, an hour ago, would have given me another start. Now I merely felt wonder as to what was coming.

"Mr. Horace Rand wants to talk to Mr. Essex." Appearing in the doorway, the policeman spoke to Chief Crane.

"I'll talk to him," the chief said as Cary started to rise.

For a breath I thought Cary would resent the chief's preventing his answering his own call, but he thought better of the impulse, if he really had it, and settled back in his chair.

"I told him there had been a serious accident here and asked him to come over," the chief said on his return; and again the thought of marionettes passed through my mind.

And then the sound of swift footsteps came to our ears, the door was opened, and I heard an exclamation in Kaye's voice. Accompanied by the same policeman, she stared in at us.

"Oh, Kaye," cried Janet, relief in her voice. "I'm so glad you've come. Where have you been?"

Kaye had most certainly been crying. Her eyes were swollen, her face tear stained, and anger and bewilderment were mingled on her face. She looked at Chief Crane, whom she had known since her childhood; at the stern-faced stranger still sitting by my side; at Cary, said; graver than usual; at Janet and me. Ignoring her cousin's greeting, she cried:

"What's the matter?"

Cary looked at the chief, and the chief looked back at him; each waiting for the other to speak. But Kaye could not wait one moment.

"Has something else happened?" she asked. Terror was on her face and in her voice.

Janet rose and crossed the room to her side.

"Sit down, dear, and I'll tell you," she said, in a plying voice.

But Kaye jerked her head from her cousin's clasp.

"Something has happened to Dave!" Her eyes grew wider, her breath came in little frightened gasps. "Tonight Mark told me I couldn't marry him, but he wouldn't tell me why. Is he—is he dead?"

Chief Crane and Captain Lancy exchanged alert glances, and the chief, in a low tone, asked:

"Who is 'Dave'?"

"David Otis," returned Cary in an even lower tone. "You know him. His father, until he died, was a partner in Horace Rand's Marine Underwriting company."

Kaye did not notice this exchange. Her attention was fixed on Janet, who replied:

"Not Dave." She was sympathetically gentle.

"Thank God!" The words were heartfelt, but terror still pressed her.

"Tell me quick! Is it mother?"

Janet shook her head.

"Then it's Mark!" The words were a wail.

"Yes, I know," Chief Crane apparently thought that Kaye had been tortured long enough by Janet's slow method of breaking the evil news. He spoke gently enough, but to Kaye, although she was to a certain extent prepared, his words were an almost unbearable shock.

Softly the chief spoke again.

"Your brother is—dead."

"Mark—dead." Dully, she repeated his words. She made no effort now to pull away from Janet's sustaining hand. Unresistingly, she allowed her cousin to guide her to a chair. "What?—How?—"

"That is what we are trying to find out. You may be able to help us. You say he told you tonight that you couldn't marry David Otis. Tell us about that."

But Kaye was in no condition to answer questions. The chief's phrasing had caught her attention. Her eyes grew still larger, blacker; she leaned toward him.

"Trying to find out?" she repeated. "Don't you know how he died?"

"How—but not who killed him. I thought the chief was unnecessarily brutal. I could not know that Kaye's late entrance, with frightened, tear-stained face, had aroused his suspicion. Her piteous eyes were fastened on his.

"You mean," it was the merest whisper, "somebody killed Mark—killed him?"

"Yes. Then the horror on her face seemed to soften him. He addressed gently: "He was sitting at the library desk—someone shot him there. We're trying to find out who that someone was. Now, Kaye, tell us what Mark said to you about your marrying David Otis."

Like a flash, she turned upon me. Rage glowed in her black eyes.

"You tattled about our fight!"

Her sudden attack almost took my breath away. I knew she was thoroughly upset, but I couldn't understand why, after the confidences she had given me, she should turn upon me like that.

Only someone with something to hide would be so vindictively suspicious, I decided. Could Kaye, furiously angry with her brother—I was sure she possessed the same temper that the old captain and Miss Althea had previously exhibited—have—I couldn't bear to think such a thing. I opened my lips to reply to her accusation, but the chief sternly waved me into silence.

"No one but yourself has told anything about you, Kaye, but it's evidently high time someone did. What was this fight you're so afraid Miss Deane mentioned?"

His stern voice thoroughly cowed her. She stared at him. Afraid to speak, afraid to be silent, was the way I summed up her hesitation.

"Well," the chief snapped, and Kaye started to speak.

"—He—WE—" Her voice trembled into silence.

"Do you want me to ask Miss Deane to tell the story?" crisply came the question.

Kaye looked appealingly at me, and the agonized terror she betrayed gave me courage to speak.

"It wasn't such a terrible quarrel, Chief Crane," I said, adding to Kaye: "Tell him just what you told me."

She took courage then, and with many starts, stops and restarts, she told what I had overheard and what she had told me.

"And what did David Otis say when you told him that?"

"He doesn't know anything about it. I haven't seen him. That is what frightened me so when I came in. Dave and I usually meet where our path turns off through the woods and walk to the beach and back."

He had some work to do tonight and couldn't meet me until about 10. After Mark and I quarreled, I went out and walked around until it was time to meet Dave. He didn't come. He's never disappointed me before. I waited and waited. Then I thought something must have happened to him."

If anyone had been looking at me then, I know they would have read on my face that I knew Kaye was not telling the truth. Or was it the truth as she knew it? If she hadn't seen Dave, she couldn't know that he and Mark had quarreled over the same thing. Perhaps I was the only one to know that. I decided to say nothing then, but to wait until I could talk alone with Captain Lancy. There were several things I wanted to tell him, things I thought he should know, things the others had glossed over or failed to mention either deliberately or unintentionally. I didn't know which.

The chief rose and went to the door. We heard him speaking to the policeman.

"Call David Otis and ask him to come over here," he ordered.

"Dave doesn't know anything about Mark!" flashed Kaye. "Why are you calling him?"

The chief somberly regarded her, his eyes were grim.

OUR TWO-BASED WORLD
PERHAPS it is inevitable that, even in a national and world crisis like the present one, there should be considerable "sound and fury" connected with free government. We seem to be undergoing an experience of this kind at Washington now. And while we might be mistaken about it, we get a general impression that the sound and fury are more evident on Capitol Hill than in humbler centers of government around the country, including about 30,000,000 American homes.

In the great majority of these 30,000,000 centers of government, we fancy, the real masters of this country are not roaring and bellowing at each other. They are just quietly resolved to do what has to be done to keep this nation free, and by a great majority they are convinced that their best bet for continued possession of their own country is cooperation with the country from which this nation got its basic law, culture, institutions and language.

Wendell Willkie, disregarding party politics in a way that follows the famous advice of George Washington against excessive partisanship, urges his fellow-citizens to decide our international problems today "in the light of the total situation." Such a standard goes far beyond racial or regional or political considerations.

New occasions not only "teach new duties" but bring new problems. We have to judge of international policy, and choose our international associates, in the light of these times and their tragic needs. If we threw away, today, the friendship and cooperation of the British Empire, instead of upholding it and making a two-based world of freedom, we would probably regret it all the rest of our national life.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR
I HAD JUMPED, startled, at so many things tonight that I was becoming utterly blasé. That loud ringing of the telephone bell cutting sharply across the end of Jacob's story, an hour ago, would have given me another start. Now I merely felt wonder as to what was coming.
"Mr. Horace Rand wants to talk to Mr. Essex." Appearing in the doorway, the policeman spoke to Chief Crane.
"I'll talk to him," the chief said as Cary started to rise.
For a breath I thought Cary would resent the chief's preventing his answering his own call, but he thought better of the impulse, if he really had it, and settled back in his chair.
"I told him there had been a serious accident here and asked him to come over," the chief said on his return, and again the thought of marionettes passed through my mind.
And then the sound of swift footsteps came to our ears, the door was opened, and I heard an exclamation in Kaye's voice. Accompanied by the same policeman, she stared in at us.
"Oh, Kaye," cried Janet, relief in her voice. "I'm so glad you've come. Where have you been?"
Kaye had most certainly been crying. Her eyes were swollen, her face tear stained, and anger and bewilderment were mingled on her face. She looked at Chief Crane, whom she had known since her childhood; at the stern-faced stranger still sitting by my side; at Cary, sad faced; graver than usual; at Janet and me. Ignoring her cousin's greeting, she cried:
"What's the matter?"
Cary looked at the chief, and the chief looked back at him; each seemed waiting for the other to speak. But Kaye could not wait one moment.
"Has something else happened?" she asked. Terror was on her face and in her voice.
Janet rose and crossed the room to her side.
"Sit down, dear, and I'll tell you," she said, in a pitying voice.
But Kaye jerked her "and from her cousin's clasp."
"Something has happened to Dave!" Her eyes grew wider, her breath came in little frightened gasps. Tonight Mark told me I couldn't marry him, but he wouldn't tell me why. Is he—Is he dead?"
Chief Crane and Captain Lancy exchanged alert glances, and the chief, in a low tone, asked:
"Who is 'Dave'?"
"David Otis," returned Cary in an even lower tone. "You know him. His father, until he died, was a partner in Horace Rand's Marine Underwriting company."

Kaye did not notice this exchange. Her attention was fixed on Janet, who replied:
"Not Dave." She was sympathetically gentle.
"Thank God!" The words were heartfelt, but terror still pressed her.
"Tell me quickly! Is it mother?" Janet shook her head.
"Then it's Mark!" The words were a wall.
For now it's Mark! Chief Crane apparently thought that Kaye had been tortured long enough by Janet's slow method of breaking the evil news. He spoke gently enough, but to Kaye, although she was to a certain extent prepared, his words were an almost unbearable shock.
Softly the chief spoke again.
"Your brother is—dead."
"Mark—dead." Dully, she repeated his words. She made no effort now to pull away from Janet's sustaining hand. Unreelingly, she allowed her cousin to guide her to a chair. "What?—How?—?"
"That is what we are trying to find out. You may be able to help us. You say he told you tonight that you couldn't marry David Otis. Tell us about that."
But Kaye was in no condition to answer questions. The chief's phrasing had caught her attention. Her eyes grew still larger, blacker; she leaned toward him.
"Trying to find out!" she repeated. "Don't you know how he died?"
"How—but not who killed him?" I thought. "The chief was unnecessarily brutal. I could not know that Kaye's late entrance, with frightened, tear-stained face, had aroused his suspicion. Her piteous eyes were fastened on his."
"You mean," it was the merest whisper, "somebody killed Mark—killed him?"
"Yes." Then the horror on her face seemed to soften him. He added gently: "He was sitting at the library desk—someone shot him there. We're trying to find out who that someone was. Now, Kaye, tell us what Mark said to you about your marrying David Otis."
Like a flash, she turned upon me. Rage glowed in her black eyes.
"You tattled about our fight!"
Her sudden attack almost took my breath away. I knew she was thoroughly upset, but I couldn't understand why, after the confidences she had given me, she should turn upon me like that. Only someone with something to hide would be so vindictively suspicious. I decided. Could Kaye, furiously angry with her brother—I was sure she possessed the same temper that the old captain and Miss Althea had previously exhibited—have—I couldn't bear to think such a thing. I opened my lips to reply to her accusation, but the chief sternly waved me into silence.

"No one but yourself has told anything about you, Kaye, but it's evidently high time someone did. What was this fight you're so afraid Miss Deane mentioned?"
His stern voice thoroughly cowed her. She stared at him. Afraid to speak, afraid to be silent, was the way I summed up her hesitation.
"Well?" the chief snapped, and Kaye stumbled into speech.
"He—WE—" Her voice trembled into silence.
"Do you want me to ask Miss Deane to tell the story?" crisply came the question.
Kaye looked appealingly at me, and the agonized terror she betrayed gave me courage to speak.
She took courage then, and with many starts, stops and restarts, she told what it had overheard and what she had told me. Her never disappointed me before. I waited and waited. Then I thought something must have happened to him.
If anyone had been looking at me then, I know they would have read on my face that I knew Kaye was not telling the truth. Or was it the truth as she knew it? If she hadn't seen Dave, she couldn't know that he and Mark had quarreled over the same thing. Perhaps I was the only one to know that. I decided to say nothing then, but to wait until I could talk alone with Captain Lancy. There were several things I wanted to tell him, things I thought he should know, things the others had glossed over or failed to mention either deliberately or unintentionally. I didn't know which.
The chief rose and went to the door. We heard him speaking to the policeman.
"Call David Otis and ask him to come over here," he ordered.
"Dave doesn't know anything about Mark's fight," Kaye. "Why are you calling him?"
The chief somberly regarded her, his eyes were grim.

People In Homeland Have Never Lost Faith Despite Nazis

PERSECUTION GOES ON

Ten Million Persons In Concentration Camps In Land

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21 — Despite Hitler's typical Teutonic thoroughness in the drive to stamp out Czechoslovakia's national spirit, that nation shall yet arise from the common grave of Europe's little nations.

That is the firm conviction of Vojta Benes, former President of the Czechoslovak Senate, as expressed in a San Francisco speech. The world asked for peace without justice and accepted the Munich Agreement," Benes said. "Czechoslovakia before Munich was one of the strong European democracies. The constitution of Czechoslovakia was based on the principles of Christian democracy. National equality was guaranteed to all. All groups lived peaceably side by side. It was one of the healthiest states in Europe after the last war.

"For twenty years we guarded the priceless gift of our liberty — and guarded it well. Our social legislation was second to none in Europe.

Respected Minorities

"At no time did the Czechoslovakian nation oppress its minorities. We never oppressed our Germans for in so doing we would have violated our own right to live.

"The German minority had both political and cultural rights; there were three German universities maintained by the state and 5,200 German grade schools with German superintendents and officials. "Thousands of German and Jewish refugees found a free haven in Czechoslovakia during its twenty years of free and democratic life.

"Then came Munich and the days after. Then came the 15th of March when the German Army marched through the historic walls of our beautiful Prague.

"We were despairing, helpless, mistrusted everybody and even ourselves. Munich was the first and biggest German military victory in the present World War.

"Why did history let us perish? Why did we spend so much labor reviving a nation from its grave if only to die again?

Lost Fear Of Nazis

"On the sixteenth of March, 1939, Czechoslovakia ceased being afraid of Nazi Germany and began holding Germany in the utmost contempt. The Germans who write books about psychology have never been good psychologists. Minds are conquered not by armies and wars but by greatness of mind and soul.

"Since March 15th, 1939, Czechoslovakia has been a concentration camp of ten million people.

"My homeland is one of the largest prisons in the world, a land of tears and blood, a land of misery where hungry children cry for bread.

"The Gestapo focused its attention on former Czechoslovakian officials, and wholesale deportations to German concentration camps began. All Czechoslovakian schools have been either closed or controlled by the Gestapo. Children are being Nazified. Skilled workers are transported to Germany. Thousands of our people have been sent to jail.

"It is difficult to give a full account of the humiliations and suffering. Many have committed suicide.

Nazis Seek Economic Control "The chief aim of Germany is to gain control of the entire economic life of the country. The Germans are taking control of the banks, commerce, industry and agriculture.

"Thousands of students in Prague have been arrested—126 of them executed in a body, and among them two women.

"It seems the Germans plan to remain the overlords of Czechoslovakia forever. Since the fall of France the sufferings of our people have increased.

"Czech universities no longer exist. A country with eight million Czechoslovakians is left with only German universities.

"It is a deliberate, cold-blooded plan to deprive Czechoslovakia of its last weapon.

"The Germans have stationed 400,000 men in Czechoslovakia, such is their fear of Czech uprising.

"But the Czechoslovakian nation has never historically betrayed its ideals. Our determination to resist has been strengthened by European events.

SCURRILOUS LITERATURE

Sensational feature of the forthcoming report of the Senate campaign fund investigating committee will be an expose of scurrilous literature disseminated in last year's hectic presidential battle. A 500-page "scrapbook" of exhibits has been assembled by Harold Buckles, committee investigator, from all over the country.

While partisans of both candidates resorted to this type of literature, more than 80 percent of Buckles' collection is anti-Roosevelt. Also, of 46 typical exhibits, one-half are wholly anonymous or only vaguely identified, and one-fifth are sponsored by obvious fly-by-night organizations.

The committee lists 135 such groups, of which 111 were pro-Willkie and 22 pro-Roosevelt. Only six of the 135 filed reports of their contributions and expenditures with the Clerk of the House. This failure to report is a violation of the law and carries heavy penalties.

Dominant theme of the scurrilous literature is racial and religious prejudice. More than 60 percent of the committee's exhibits harp on this, 10 percent played up the war issue, and 15 percent leveled foul personal attacks on the candidates.

All but two of the latter were directed at the President and members of his family. Several contain photographs of Mrs. Roosevelt retouched so as to give her a negroid appearance. These were widely distributed in the South. Several others printed pictures of the President retouched so as to give him a Jewish cast of features.

Oddly, despite the furore about "bossism" during the campaign, less than five percent of the exhibits deal with this subject. Also, only four percent raise the dictatorship issue and only six percent attacked the third term—both major battlegrounds in the campaign.

NOTE—Committee investigators are of the private opinion that not less than $10,000,000 was spent for the printing and distribution of scurrilous material during the campaign.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sam Pryor, ball-bearing-tongued National Committeeman from Connecticut, is pushing lame-duck Governor Baldwin as successor to National Chairman Joe Martin. Some time ago Pryor had his own ambitions for the job, but was stopped dead by a blunt warning from Midwestern leaders. . . . For the fourth time running, Representative Wright Patman, husky Texan crusader, copped the honor of introducing the first bill at the opening of Congress. As on the other three occasions, the measure was his hotly controversial chain-store tax bill. Second honor went to Florida's bustling Joe Hendricks with an anti-sabotage proposal. . . . National Youth Administrator Aubrey Williams has a bow coming for a really effective defense job. In sixty days he added 50,000 youths to the NYA's program of training mechanics for defense industries, at present has 123,000 in shops all over the country. . . . Henry Wallace, annoyed by an interpreter who stood beside him and translated his remarks, phrase by phrase, into Spanish, switched and began speaking Spanish himself. But the interpreter reversed himself and translated the Spanish into English. . . . Cordell Hull hates embargoes, but State Department guards are so assiduous about keeping people out of the building that they actually made Hull's chauffeur register in a book before he could get in. . . . Franklin Field is a famous football gridiron; also the name of a man who urges more Good Neighborliness through private aviation.

JUDGE NOLLES CHARGES AGAINST UTILITY MEN

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Holding that there was no authorization for the oaths on which the indictments were predicated, Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds today had quashed perjury indictments against four officers and two former officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

The indictments, Judge Reynolds' decision explained, were based on "alleged false matter" in several of the company's annual reports which was sworn to before a notary public before the reports were presented to the state utilities commission.

The quashed indictments were against C. L. Weaver, president

JUDGE NOLLES CHARGES AGAINST UTILITY MEN

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Holding that there was no authorization for the oaths on which the indictments were predicated, Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds today had quashed perjury indictments against four officers and two former officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

The indictments, Judge Reynolds' decision explained, were based on "alleged false matter" in several of the company's annual reports which was sworn to before a notary public before the reports were presented to the state utilities commission.

The quashed indictments were against C. L. Weaver, president

Impregnable Fortress To Be Met By Germans If Attack Is Tried

BIG GUNS IN PLACE

Many Fortifications Put Up To Protect Arms Of Smaller Type

LONDON, Jan. 21—In five months Britain has worked day and night to turn herself into an impregnable fortress to repulse any attempted invasion by Germany.

International News Service was recently privileged by permission of the British War Office to see what awaits any invader of these shores.

Installed along the whole of the English East coast are powerful long range coastal batteries, together with concentrations of searchlights, anti-aircraft guns and fortifications housing machine-guns.

Directly the invasion alarm is sounded England's Army, Navy and Air Force will go into action long before enemy transports can be sighted.

Long Range Guns Ready

Aerial reconnaissance by the R. A. F. and reports from forward observation posts would enable the heavy long-range guns to engage the enemy before their ships appeared on the horizon.

German E-boats, which at first presented a problem, will also have their special share of the hell that is being prepared for them.

The Army does not have to depend on the Navy to curb the activities of these fast torpedo-carrying speedboats.

An impressive demonstration was given by Royal Artillery Gunners of the reception E-boats can expect.

A fast motorboat with a practice target six feet in length sped across the water at full speed.

Ready In A Few Seconds

Sharp words of command were given and in a few seconds the crew of one of the latest type guns were at their positions.

The gun banged and a shell screamed towards the tiny target a considerable distance from the shore. It burst a few yards ahead.

Within a few seconds other shells exploded all around the target. The rate of fire was very high.

The shelling was brought to an end by signals from the motorboat which brought in what was left of the target. It had been so riddled, it was no longer distinguishable.

British Shipping Active

Although Germany likes it to be believed that British shipping has been driven from the seas, there were vessels of all kinds in adjacent waters, guarded by forts. Correspondents had to wait for more than an hour before an opportunity for a practice shoot presented itself.

One of these forts was a massive stone structure built in the eighteenth century by French prisoners of war.

Not long ago it was considered hopelessly out of date, but now its antique fortifications have been adapted to meet modern needs.

It's enormous thick and strong walls provide ideal protection against bombs, and vast quantities of ammunition can be stored in safety in deep vaults.

Technique Followed Elsewhere

This technique of adapting out-of-date fortifications as defenses against the modern engines of war has been followed with great success.

Castle moats have now become impassable obstacles to tanks and many of Britain's old Martello towers—erected to ward off Napoleon—are now skillfully camouflaged concealing a machine gun.

Every day too, troops go through sham invasion exercises to keep them fighting fit in the event that an invasion is attempted.

Planes Continue To Hunt For Flyers Lost In Far West

ASHLAND, Ore., Jan. 21—

Flickering lights observed in the rugged grizzly peak area of the Siskiyou Mountains—possibly signal flares—today aroused hopes for the lives of seven army flyers aboard a missing McChord Field bombing plane.

The twin engined plane disappeared five days ago after leaving McChord Field, near Tacoma, Wash., for Muroc Dry Lake, in the Mojave desert, southern California.

The reports of flickering blazes in the grizzly mountain sector touched off a new direction to organized search efforts for the men. One bomber assigned to the search was already based nearby and four more were expected from Sacramento air depot.

War Activity Now Encircles All of Europe

THIS map shows how the most recent war activity encircles the European continent. 1—British motor ship Zealandic torpedoed off Ireland

2—British planes again subject Wilhelmshafen, great German naval base, to heavy bombing. 3—German dive bombers attack island of Malta, British Mediterranean naval base. 4—Russian and Romanian troops engage in border clashes. Hungarian railways suspend all passenger operations, as result.

Pal Wounded, Two West Coast Policemen Injured In Street Battle

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21—One boy bandit was dead, another was wounded so seriously he may die and two rookie detectives were in critical condition today following a terrific running gun fight among the four in downtown Los Angeles last night.

The dead youth was identified by police as Oscar Decola, 15, a transient from Lawrence, Mass. His companion, police said, was Joe Andrews, 16, also of Lawrence. Officers C. H. Hart and J. W. Powers, both new on the force, received critical wounds in the sensational running battle that endangered the lives of scores of persons.

All four went down in a blazing fusillade of shots in the heart of the downtown district. The gun battle climaxed a wild street chase after the two youths allegedly had held up a cigar store a block away.

P. J. Comerford, clerk, was alone in the store when the two boys entered and held him up.

Comerford grappled with one of Hart and Powers and intercepted. them, and each fired at him once, both shots going wild. One of the bandits seized $25 from the cash register and the pair fled up an alley. A passerby summoned officers who gave chase on foot. A block distant the boys were spotted by

SOLONS TO FACE SIX IMPORTANT 'MUST' ACTIONS

Lend-Lease Measure First On Agenda Before Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—With President Roosevelt's third term inauguration out of the way, congress today faced a long grind of hard work on a staggering pile of "must" legislation.

These included:

1. President Roosevelt's measure to lease or lend war materials to Britain.
2. Enactment of the $17,500,000 budget, and, over and above that, appropriations of billions to carry out the British aid program.
3. New taxation measures.
4. Lifting of the debt limit from $49,000,000 to $65,000,000, or scrapping it altogether.
5. Passage of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project.
6. Bigger old age pensions and bringing more people under unemployment insurance.

The first five will cause what may turn out to be hectic fights. It is not known how long this, the 77th session, of congress will last. Nor will anyone hazard a guess. The last congress sat for 367 days, setting an all-time record. It had refused to adjourn during the world crisis, thus setting a present congress to stay in session as long as there is war abroad.

Several members questioned Churchill's assumption that the world is aware of Britain's war aims. He refused to be drawn, however, and closed the questioning with these words:

"As I have said, whenever a good opportunity presents itself, I or other ministers will certainly be on the lookout to turn the opportunity to best advantage."

The debate then drifted off on the subject of the war in Africa. In reply to a question, Churchill said that no arrangement had been made to evacuate Italian women and children from Abyssinia, Eritrea and Somaliland and that no request to this effect had been received from Rome.

"It would not be possible to interrupt the operations now in progress," he said.

45 CHICKENS ABANDONED IN PERRY TOWNSHIP FIELD

Sacks containing 45 chickens, half of which were Banded Rocks and half White Rocks were found in a corn field on the Charles Mills farm, Perry Township, late Monday evening. The chickens were found when Mr. Mills went into the field after fodder.

All the chickens were alive and were being kept at the Mills farm Tuesday while Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated the case.

Undoubtedly the chickens were stolen, the sheriff said. Anyone missing the chickens should contact the sheriff.

"It seems to me conveying would lead to war because if our ships were destroyed our people would favor doing something to protect our honor and prestige," he said.

"The great danger is that we would be placed in the position where one would have to do something and not Germany."

Kennedy, under questioning by Rep. Fish (R) N. Y., asserted that some British officials "at the top" feel that to have the United States enter the war would be a "detritment" because it would mean that instead of aiding Britain with armaments, the United States would divert them to its own needs. ## Situation Critical Reports reaching Budapest said the situation in Romania had suddenly become "most critical."

Iron Guardists have been parading through the streets since last night demanding revenge for Doehring's death.

The demonstrations started suddenly late at night. Many thousands of Iron Guardists marched along the Calae Victoriei towards the royal palace in Bucharest, distributing leaflets and yelling:

"Revenge!"

Interior Minister Gen. Petrovicescu, who later was ousted from government for incompetence, rushed police and troops into action against the demonstrators, but the police—instead of dispersing the mob—joined the demonstrators in front of the prime minister's office.

There the great crowd shouted demands that either Premier Antonescu or Vice Premier Horia Sima, Iron Guard leader, address them. But reports from Bucharest said neither Antonescu or Sima appeared on the balcony in response to the hoarse shouts of the swelling throng.

Antonescu thereupon held an urgent cabinet meeting and dismissed the interior minister on grounds that he had failed to perform his function and had not succeeded in arresting the German officer's slayer until nine hours after the crime was committed.

Gen. Dimitri Popescu, commander-in-chief of the Bucharest military garrison, was named Romania's new minister of interior. Popescu immediately concentrated crack troops around public buildings in Bucharest and occupied all main streets and thoroughfares.

Great military tanks formed cordons around the royal palace and government buildings.

This morning heavily armed soldiers calmly faced furious crowds lined up along the Calae Victoriei.

But Romanian police in great numbers were reported still flocking to the ranks of the demonstrators and joining forces with the Iron Guardists, who refused to disperse and tried to force their way through the military guards to the government buildings.

The alleged murderer, Axioti, apparently was executed before revealing the motive for the killing. All information from Bucharest said the reason for the assassination of Major Doehring was still unknown.

Meanwhile, Premier Antonescu issued an appeal to the Romanian population to "keep calm."

The radio stressed yesterday's announcement that Hitler and Mussolini, as they did before the big pushes of 1940, reached a full agreement on their next move.

The basis for this agreement, the announcer affirmed, revolved about three chief points, the first being the mutual conviction of the dictators that England is doomed and that a final axis victory is chiefly a matter of military timing and procedure.

The other points on which they were said to have based their agreement were conviction that American aid cannot prevent Britain's defeat or extend the European war, and that the axis powers will maintain their policy of "refusing to be provoked by the Western Hemisphere."

SOLONS TO FACE SIX IMPORTANT 'MUST' ACTIONS

Lend-Lease Measure First On Agenda Before Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—With President Roosevelt's third term inauguration out of the way, congress today faced a long grind of hard work on a staggering pile of "must" legislation.

These included:

1. President Roosevelt's measure to lease or lend war materials to Britain.
2. Enactment of the $17,500,000 budget, and, over and above that, appropriations of billions to carry out the British aid program.
3. New taxation measures.
4. Lifting of the debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000, or scrapping it altogether.
5. Passage of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project.
6. Bigger old age pensions and bringing more people under unemployment insurance.

The first five will cause what may turn out to be hectic fights. It is not known how long this, the 77th session, of congress will last. Nor will anyone hazard a guess. The last congress sat for 367 days, setting an all-time record. It had refused to adjourn during the world crisis, thus setting a present congress to stay in session as long as there is war abroad.

AIM OF BRITAIN TO END TYRANNY TOLD TO SOLONS

now ground under the German yoke.

"I am not, however, able to add anything at the present time."

Several members questioned Churchill's assumption that the world is aware of Britain's war aims. He refused to be drawn, however, and closed the questioning with these words:

"As I have said, whenever a good opportunity presents itself, I or other ministers will certainly be on the lookout to turn the opportunity to best advantage."

The debate then drifted off on the subject of the war in Africa. In reply to a question, Churchill said that no arrangement had been made to evacuate Italian women and children from Abyssinia, Eritrea and Somaliland and that no request to this effect had been received from Rome.

"It would not be possible to interrupt the operations now in progress," he said.

45 CHICKENS ABANDONED IN PERRY TOWNSHIP FIELD

Sacks containing 45 chickens, half of which were Barred Rocks and half White Rocks were found in a corn field on the Charles Mills farm, Perry Township, late Monday evening. The chickens were found when Mr. Mills went into the field after fodder.

All the chickens were alive and were being kept at the Mills farm Tuesday while Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated the case.

Undoubtedly the chickens were stolen, the sheriff said. Anyone missing the chickens should contact the sheriff.

This is the story he told International News Service:

"We were coming in fine about 3 a. m. We were about to make the turn at the light for the run up the harbor. We were only 45 minutes from home.

"Suddenly we hit something.

"We thought it was a barge. It might have been a submerged object. Still it might have been a ledge.

Many Trapped Below

"The crash tore the Mary E. O'Hara right apart. She began to fill fast. The water came in so fast that many of the fellows couldn't get up from below.

"Those who were on deck and those who were able to get out of the cabin ran for the masts.

"Those who went up the foremast were unlucky. Within a few minutes it was under water and they went down.

"A few more of the fellows with us on the main mast did their best to hold on but they couldn't because of the cold.

"They dropped off one by one, yelling and praying.

"For three hours we were all yelling and then praying. We could see the lights of ships passing but they couldn't see us.

"Probably it was our yelling that attracted the North Star. They put over a dory and took us off."

Other rescued with Welsh were Frank Silver, Stanley Conrad, Cecil Crowle and Cecil Larkin.

Similar To Others

The radio stressed yesterday's announcement that Hitler and Mussolini, as they did before the big pushes of 1940, reached a full agreement on their next move.

The basis for this agreement, the announcer affirmed, revolved about three chief points, the first being the mutual conviction of the dictators that England is doomed and that a final axis victory is chiefly a matter of military timing and procedure.

The other points on which they were said to have based their agreement were conviction that American aid cannot prevent Britain's defeat or extend the European war, and that the axis powers will maintain their policy of "refusing to be provoked by the Western Hemisphere."

LONDON, Jan. 21—After keeping away from Britain throughout the night, German raiders launched new attacks on England today, causing London's 445th air raid alarm of the war.

Absence of the Nazi raiders during the night was attributed to bad weather.

The London alarm sounded at 10:30 a. m. and ended half an hour later. There was no aerial activity over the London area.

An Air Ministry communique said:

"There is nothing to report." Likewise, it was understood adverse weather conditions over the continent halted RAF activity last night.

BERLIN, Jan. 21 — Carrying out three raids at sea northwest of Ireland, German planes yesterday bombed a 6,500-ton merchant vessel and two small armed merchant ships, one of 800 and the other of 400 tons, it was announced in Berlin today.

In addition, it was stated, an 800-ton vessel bombed several days ago 20 miles east of Harwich was observed later in a sinking condition.

ATHENS, Jan. 21 — Shooting down two Italian bombers, British fighting planes fought off a Fascist air raid on Piraeus, the port of Athens, the Greek high command announced today.

The spectacular aerial battle occurred as the Italians launched an attack deep in Greek territory for the first time in several weeks.

One of the Italian bombers fell into the sea near the Isle of Fleves and the other crashed west of Sunim. The attack on Piraeus caused only a few casualties, the war communique said.

Bombs also were dropped on rural regions of Eleusis, Corfu and Kandia, but no damage or casualties were reported in these areas.

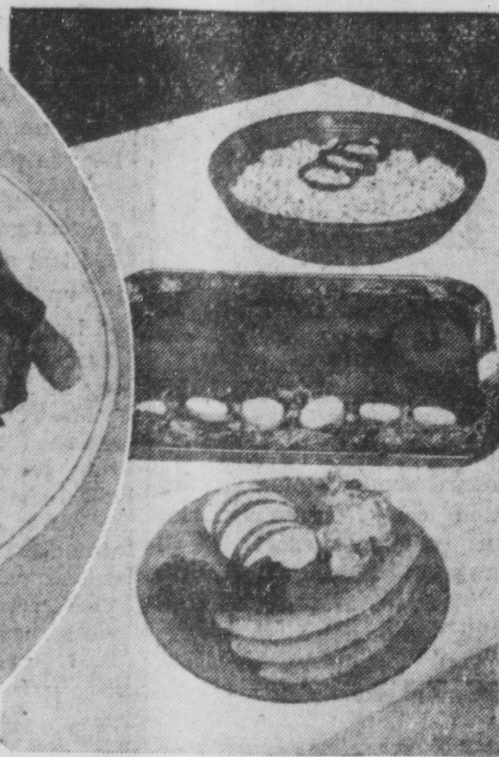

King George visited bombed areas of Piraeus shortly after the raid ended and received a stirring ovation from residents. He talked with the people, expressing sympathy for those who suffered property losses.

A military spokesman claimed, meanwhile, that a Greek infantry detachment on the Albanian coastal sector north of Chimara captured an entire Italian trench mortar battalion, taking many

Assembly Meets To Act On Municipalities' Aid

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Following nearly a week's rest since Governor Bricker delivered his second biennial message, the 94th General Assembly returned to Columbus today to begin in earnest the task of considering its own and the administration's legislative programs.

One of the first matters up for consideration in the House and virtually ready for final passage immediately was the measure calling for a special appropriation of $2,209,210 to reimburse local subdivisions for funds spent for relief last year.

The bill already has passed the Senate and is expected to be approved by the House without much debate, because Democrats and Republicans alike apparently are eager to pass on funds to their localities. The legislation also has the "blessing" of Governor Bricker.

Bitter debate, however, is expected on two bills, one introduced in each branch of the Assembly, to increase from $12,000,000 to $17,000,000 annually the local subdivision's share of sales tax collections.

While Bricker went on record as favoring "some" financial aid prisoners and seizing large quantities of weapons and ammunition.

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 21 — Nineteen axis planes were shot down in Sunday's raid on Malta, British Mediterranean stronghold, according to a revised official announcement today. Originally it was claimed that 15 of the attacking planes were destroyed.

Republican spokesmen saw some ray of hope for an administration victory on the defeat of the legislation in the fact that Democrats introduced it in both branches. Senator Lipscher (D-Youngstown) introduced the bill in the Senate, and Rep. Huml (D-Cuyahoga) submitted a similar measure in the lower chamber.

Municipal and county officials long have sought additional funds from the state and are expected to "put on pressure" to have the sales-tax allocation law passed.

Meanwhile, state department heads were busy with Finance Director Herbert Defenbacher on the biennial budget bill in the hope that it would be ready for submission to the Assembly not later than February 15, the date tentatively set by Bricker for his message on the general appropriation.

In all, a total of 76 bills were ready for legislative and committee action as the legislature began its third week of work.

FATE OF GREEK SHIP UNCERTAIN IN OCEAN GALE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21 — Fate of the Greek steamer Aghia Thalassini was uncertain today after the freighter radioed for immediate help, declaring its forward hold flooded and helm broken in a violent mid-Pacific storm.

The trans-Pacific liner President Cleveland picked up a distress message from Capt. Joanis Giannoulis: "Gale every strong. I am in dangerous situation. I want immediate help." The 2,375-ton vessel was midway between Wake Island and Guam, 800 miles distant, when the message was received. Efforts to contact the ship's radio were futile.

The Aghia sailed from San Francisco on December 19 with a crew of 29-ten of whom are Americans—and a cargo of copper and general merchandise consigned Japanese firms.

Feller To Talk Terms With Cleveland Bosses

By Gerald Healey

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21.—That famous young man of baseball—Bob Feller—was scheduled to talk over money matters with the Cleveland Indians' front office today and the odds were in his favor that he will wind up with the highest salary contract ever signed by a Major League pitcher.

Although the Indian management never announces what salary its players get, it's a pretty safe bet that the young fireballer drew $27,500 last season. And he gave a real return for value received, chalked up 27 victories in a year marked by internal club bickering and discontent and capped by the firing of Manager Oscar Vitt.

Most baseball observers were satisfied that the least Bob will sign for is $30,000 and in some quarters it was believed he would demand a $5,000 raise, which would bring him up to $32,500.

The young speedster notified Vice-President C. C. Slapnicka last week that he would come to Cleveland by airplane today—weather permitting—to talk price with the sly ivory dealer who discovered him five years ago on his father's Van Meter, Iowa, farm.

Bob is eligible for the draft, being single and just over the draft age—he's 21—but one doesn't mention those things around the Indian tepee. Losing Feller to Uncle Sam's army would be tantamount to kissing goodbye whatever hopes the Cleveland team has of winning the American League flag this year.

And it probably wouldn't be safe to mention the army to Bob. He's right at the peak now, able to demand a staggering salary for a moundsman, and although he's not unpatriotic he still wants a chance to collect the sheaf of green sheets that will be waiting for him every payday at the cashier's office.

TERRY MAY LOSE FIELDER TO U. S. FOR YEAR'S TIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Bill Terry's plans to rebuild the New York Giants were given a rude jolt today by news from Ashland, Wis., that the local draft board rejected an application for deferred status from Morris Arnovich, his leftfielder.

Terry laid out $25,000 to acquire Arnovich from the Cincinnati Reds, but it begins to appear that Uncle Sam will have the of his services about June 1, according to the latest Wisconsin information.

It was believed Terry may now attempt to make a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals for Enos Slaughter or Ernie Koy.

JACOBS TRAVELS SOUTH, LEAVING NOVA ON SHELF

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—So Promotor Mike Jacobs took Billy Conn, the light heavyweight champion until further notice and the heavyweight challenger as of June, and scurried off to Miami with him, leaving behind a rash of speculation on which way the winds are going to blow for Lou Nova. We'll all know shortly, with a Nova-Max Baer match now in the making and to be closed if everybody will quit snapping and growling at each other from several points.

Ray Carlin, Nova's manager, wants Conn, who isn't going to be risked in any such transaction with his shot at Joe Louis already closed. Jacobs wants Nova and Max Baer. Anell Hoffman, Baer's manager, probably doesn't want anybody, but might be wheedled into accepting twice as much as another Baer fight is worth. It goes 'round and 'round and comes out finally somewhere.

In the meantime, James Clarence Burman, of Baltimore and Jack Dempsey's Broadway cocktail lounge, is training in strict privacy at nearby Summit, N. J., to get his chin in shape for January 31, when he will join the long list of those who have pushed their face against Louis' fists with great violence but little success.

Or are you superstitious? This is to be Louis' 13th title defense.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21.—Three Canton high school basketball teams—McKinley, Timken and St. Johns—are keeping the Stark County city in the limelight as the scholastic cage race moves along toward the tournament climax.

The McKinley five, hit by influenza which forced postponement of last week's game with Warren, is riding along with seven straight wins while Timken has eight without a loss and St. Johns has one more without a blemish.

McKinley, however, will be in dire danger Friday night when it meets the powerful Dover Crimson Tornadoes, victors in nine out of ten games, in a headline catcher at Dover. Dover scorched Uhrichsville, 45-38 for its sixth straight win last week.

Akron South continues to zoom along on the undefeated path, having downed Akron West, 35-20 for win No. 9. Wyndol Gray, the state's leading "A" scorer, missed 14 of 17 free tosses but still showed up with nine points to raise his season's total to 179.

The major upset of the past week saw Newark's great team fall before Coshocton, 35-33.

THREE REDLEGS SIGN

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21.—Three more members of the world champion Cincinnati Reds today were in the fold for another season after returning signed contracts to Warren Giles, vice-president and general manager of the club. They are Mike McCormick and Mike Dejan, outfielders, and Pitcher Witt Guise.

JACK LELIVELT DIES

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 21.—Jack Lelivelt, veteran manager of the Seattle Baseball Club, died suddenly near midnight last night in a Seattle Hospital, presumably from a heart attack. He collapsed while attending a basketball game.

JOHNNY BABICH SIGNS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Johnny Babich, ace of the A's moundsmen, has come to terms with Connie Mack for the 1941 season, it was announced today. Two other players—Pitcher Luman Harris of Birmingham, Ala., and Catcher Hal Wagner of Palmyra, N. J.—also signed 1941 pacts yesterday, leaving only 10 players still outside the fold. The latter group includes only one star, namely Sam Chapman.

LEIBER DECLINES OFFER

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The Chicago Cubs' holdout troubles appeared to be piling up today, with Hank Leiber, hard-hitting outfielder, the latest to express displeasure with the terms offered him for 1941.

Edmond Hoyle, who originated the rules for card games, lived from 1672 to 1769. He resided in London and taught games. In 1742 he published "A Short Treatise on the Game of Whist," which became the world's authority.

CRIDERSVILLE, O., STAR SETS FAST PACE IN SCORING

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21.—With an average of 22.9 points a game in 14 contests, Roger Phillips, Cridersville High School center, today headed all state scholastic scorers with 321 points in 14 games.

The Cridersville five has piled up 725 tallies in winning 13 of its 14 games.

Vaughsville's 6 foot 7 inch center, Sylvester Goedde, scored 53 points in two week-end games to stretch his scoring record to 231 for the season. Vaughsville has won 9 of eleven tilts. Goedde has averaged 21 points a game.

Dick Steward, sharp-shooting Malta-McConnellsville forward, who tallied 45 points against Chesterhill last week is riding close to the top with an average of 21.25 points in nine games.

Other scoring sprees during the last week saw John Christlein, of Champion, Trumbull County, tally 40 as his team crushed Greene; Al Simpson, of Freeport, 33; Morris, of New Carlisle, 28 and Dick Strider, Glenford, 25.

As Eaton, up in Dorain County, downed Avon, 60-20, a couple of scoring twins—Bob Rothel and Dave Hawke—scored 21 points each.

Edmond Hoyle, who originated the rules for card games, lived from 1672 to 1769. He resided in London and taught games. In 1742 he published "A Short Treatise on the Game of Whist," which became the world's authority.

WISCONSIN FIVE TO FORCE BUCKS IN LOOP JOUST

Badgers Show Strength As They Turn Back Chicago; Michigan Wins

TOLEDO'S GERBER HOT

Canton Schools Provide Victory Strings Of Great Length

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The Big Ten basketball campaign, moving along slowly this week during school examinations, nevertheless will be productive of some excitement Saturday when the conference leading Ohio State Buckeyes invade Madison to tackle Wisconsin.

The Badgers currently are riding the crest of a four-game winning streak, their last victory in the string coming last night at the expense of Chicago, 44 to 37. After losing to Minnesota in their opener, the Badgers have set a stiff pace, and the Saturday battle with Ohio may show just how dangerous they are.

In last night's two other conference games, Michigan finally found its winning stride against Minnesota, defeating the Gophers 41 to 24 at Ann Arbor, and Northwestern lost to Iowa, 52-41. The Wolverines played a tight defensive game to end their losing streak at four, and the Hawkeyes again proved themselves a potent combination in handling the Wildcats their fourth setback.

Saturday, in addition to the Ohio-Wisconsin tilt, Michigan will invade Evanston to discover just how long Northwestern can continue losing.

By International News Service
Bob Gerber, Toledo University's star center, today assumed leadership in the Ohio Collegiate scoring race with 183 points as the Rockets recorded a 43-35 win over West Virginia for their 11th straight victory of the season.

Gerber collected 14 points against the Mountaineers to give him a short lead over Leo Mogus, Youngstown center, who holds second spot in the scoring race with 177 points. Frankie Baumholtz, Ohio University's flash forward, is just behind Mogus with 176 tallies.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21.—Three Canton high school basketball teams—McKinley, Timken and St. Johns—are keeping the Stark County city in the limelight as the scholastic cage race moves along toward the tournament climax.

The McKinley five, hit by influenza which forced postponement of last week's game with Warren, is riding along with seven straight wins while Timken has eight without a loss and St. Johns has one more without a blemish.

Here are results from Kingston's fights Monday night:

Carl Thompson, Circleville, winner over Dick Shaw, Ashville.

Roy Booker, Chillicothe, and Kid Pennington, Marion, draw.

Gin Gilmore, Marion, winner over Gold Weaver, Kingston.

Feller To Talk Terms With Cleveland Bosses

By Gerald Healey

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21—That famous young man of baseball—Bob Feller—was scheduled to talk over money matters with the Cleveland Indians' front office today and the odds were in his favor that he will wind up with the highest salary contract ever signed by a Major League pitcher.

Although the Indian management never announces what salary its players get, it's a pretty safe bet that the young fireballer drew $27,500 last season. And he gave a real return for value received, chalk-up 27 victories in a year marked by internal club bickering and discontent and capped by the firing of Manager Oscar Vitt.

Most baseball observers were satisfied that the least Bob will sign for is $30,000 and in some quarters it was believed he would demand a $5,000 raise, which would bring him up to $32,500.

The young speedster notified Vice-President C. C. Slapnicka last week that he would come to Cleveland by airplane today—weather permitting—to talk price with the

TIGER STARTING FIVE UNCERTAIN

Showing Of Several Boys In Practice Indicates Possible Changes

Coach Roy Black of Circleville High remained uncertain Tuesday about the personnel of his starting lineup as his Tigers groomed for the invasion of the Amanda Black Aces tonight on the C. A. C. court.

Work of several boys in Monday's drill indicated that about any combination on the squad might be tried at the start, and that regardless of who starts changes may be made at almost any time. One of Monday's highlights was the bucket tossing of Johnny Woods, who has not come up to expectations as yet this year.

Amanda's strength is known, the team having won the Central District B tourney last year before getting the semi-finals of the state meet. Amanda, at this time, is without a coach. Trevor Jones having resigned last week Jones declared that he was not in ill health, he was not intending to farm as reported, but he declined to state his reasons for quitting.

CRIDERSVILLE, O., STAR SETS FAST PACE IN SCORING

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—With an average of 22.9 points a game in 14 contests, Roger Phillips, Cridersville High School center, today headed all state scholastic scorers with 321 points in 14 games.

The Cridersville five has piled up 725 tallies in winning 13 of its 14 games.

Vaughnville's 6 foot 7 inch center, Sylvester Goedde, scored 53 points in two week-end games to stretch his scoring record to 231 for the season. Vaughnville has won 9 of eleven tilts. Goedde has averaged 21 points a game. Dick Steward, sharp-shooting Malta-McConnellsville forward, who tallied 45 points against Chesterhill last week is riding close to the top with an average of 21.25 points in nine games.

Other scoring sprees during the last week saw John Christen, of Champion, Trumbull County, tally 40 as his team crushed Greene; Al Simpson, of Freepport, 33; Morris, of New Carlisle, 28 and Dick Shrider, Glenford, 25.

As Eaton, up in Dorain County, downed Avon, 60-20, a couple of scoring twins — Bob Rothel and Dave Hawke — scored 21 points each.

LEIBER DECLINES OFFER
CHICAGO, Jan. 21—The Chicago Cubs' holdout troubles appeared to be piling up today, with Hank Leiber, hard-hitting outfielder, the latest to express displeasure with the terms offered him for 1941.

Edmond Hoyle, who originated the rules for card games, lived from 1672 to 1769. He resided in London and taught games. In 1742 he published "A Short Treatise on the Game of Whist," which became the world's authority.

TERRY MAY LOSE FIELDER TO U. S. FOR YEAR'S TIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—Bill Terry's plans to rebuild the New York Giants were given a rude jolt today by news from Ashland, Wis., that the local draft board rejected an application for deferred status from Morris Arnovich, his leftfielder.

Terry laid out $25,000 to acquire Arnovich from the Cincinnati Reds, but it begins to appear that Uncle Sam will have the use of his services about June 1, according to the latest Wisconsin information.

It was believed Terry may now attempt to make a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals for Enos Slaughter or Ernie Koy.

JACOBS TRAVELS SOUTH, LEAVING NOVA ON SHELF

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—So Promotor Mike Jacobs took Billy Conn, the light heavyweight champion until further notice and the heavyweight challenger as of June, and scurried off to Miami with him, leaving behind a rash of speculation on which way the winds are going to blow for Lou Nova. We'll all know shortly, with a Nova-Max Baer match now in the making and to be closed if everybody will quit snapping and growling at each other from several points.

Ray Carlin, Nova's manager, wants Conn, who isn't going to be risked in any such transaction with his shot at Joe Louis already closed. Jacobs wants Nova and Max Baer. Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, probably doesn't want anybody, but might be wheedled into accepting twice as much as another Baer fight is worth. It goes 'round and 'round and comes out finally somewhere.

In the meantime, James Clarence Burman, of Baltimore and Jack Dempsey's Broadway cocktail lounge, is training in strict privacy at nearby Summit, N. J., to get his chin in shape for January 31, when he will join the long list of those who have pushed their face against Louis' fists with great violence but little success. Or are you superstitious? This is to be Louis' 13th title defense.

Badgers Show Strength As They Turn Back Chicago; Michigan Wins

TOLEDO'S GERBER HOT

Canton Schools Provide Victory Strings Of Great Length

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—The Big Ten basketball campaign, moving along slowly this week during school examinations, nevertheless will be productive of some excitement Saturday when the conference leading Ohio State Buckeyes invade Madison to tackle Wisconsin.

The Badgers currently are riding the crest of a four-game winning streak, their last victory in the string coming last night at the expense of Chicago, 44 to 37. After losing to Minnesota in their opener, the Badgers have set a stiff pace, and the Saturday battle with Ohio may show just how dangerous they are.

In last night's two other conference games, Michigan finally found its winning stride against Minnesota, defeating the Gophers 41 to 24 at Ann Arbor, and Northwestern lost to Iowa, 52-41. The Wolverines played a tight defensive game to end their losing streak at four, and the Hawkeyes again proved themselves a potent combination in handling the Wildcats their fourth setback.

Saturday, in addition to the Ohio-Wisconsin tilt, Michigan will invade Evanston to discover just how long Northwestern can continue losing.

By International News Service
Bob Gerber, Toledo University's star center, today assumed leadership in the Ohio Collegiate scoring race with 183 points as the Rockets recorded a 43-35 win over West Virginia for their 11th straight victory of the season. Gerber collected 14 points against the Mountaineers to give him a short lead over Leo Mogus, Youngstown center, who holds second spot in the scoring race with 177 points. Frankie Baumholtz, Ohio University's flash forward, is just behind Mogus with 176 tallies.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Three Canton high school basketball teams—McKinley, Timken and St. Johns—are keeping the Stark County city in the limelight as the scholastic cage race moves along toward the tournament climax.

The McKinley five, hit by influenza which forced postponement of last week's game with Warren, is riding along with seven straight wins while Timken has eight without a loss and St. Johns has one more without a blemish.

McKinley, however, will be in dire danger Friday night when it meets the powerful Dover Crimson Tornadoes, victors in nine out of ten games, in a headline catcher at Dover. Dover scorched Uhrichsville, 45-38 for its sixth straight win last week.

Akron South continues to zoom along on the undefeated path, having downed Akron West, 38-20 for win No. 9. Wyndol Gray, the state's leading "A" scorer, missed 14 of 17 free tosses but still showed up with nine points to raise his season's total to 179. The major upset of the past week saw Newark's great team fall before Coshocton, 35-33.

KINGSTON RESULTS

Here are results from Kingston's fights Monday night:

PART-TIME JOBS AVAILABLE FOR YOUNG MEN OF PICKAWAY COUNTY

Representative To Be At Cady's Office For Interviews

DRAFTING IS INCLUDED

Number Of Other Openings To Be Available For Unemployed

Part-time jobs in drafting and surveying for 12 Pickaway County young men between the ages of 18 and 24 are now available as a result of a project worked out between Robert D. Royer, area supervisor for the National Youth Administration, and Chester B. Alspach, Community Manager of the Scioto Farms Project, Atlanta.

The project has received the special attention of the National Youth Administration for Ohio because it provides work experience which is of prime importance for National Defense industries. According to reports from manufacturers and employment agencies, there is a heavy demand for draftsmen. The surveying experience is also of interest from the National Defense standpoint in that a great deal of construction work and improvements needed by the military forces call for experienced roadmen.

Should Apply

Pickaway County youth who are unemployed and who have had public school mechanical drawing and geometry may apply for these positions at the NYA headquarters in Mayor Cady's office in the City Hall, Circleville, on Wednesday mornings between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30. Harold Thomas, NYA youth counselor, will be glad to furnish full details about the jobs, the hours of work, and the rate of pay.

Youth who may find it more convenient to report at Washington C. H., will be able to see Mr. Thomas on Wednesday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 at the NYA headquarters over the Washington C. H. Record-Herald offices.

Surveying and drafting work will be under the supervision of Carney Wyrick, FSA district engineer, who has been assigned to the Scioto Farms Project at Atlanta. He has trained a number of young men in this kind of work and many have found full-time employment as a result of their work and experience under his supervision.

Two Clerical Jobs Open

Any young women between the ages of 18 and 24 who are unemployed, and who are qualified to type and take dictation may contact Mr. Thomas, as there will be two NYA clerical part-time positions available.

In addition to the above jobs, there will be a number of other openings shortly, as representatives of the National Youth Administration are now completing arrangements to employ approximately 75 to 100 Pickaway County young men and women. Any young man or woman who is unemployed and within the age group should see Mr. Thomas for complete details on the work opportunities to be available.

Anyone 16 or 17 years of age, who is a high school graduate, may apply also for NYA employment.

Health Conditions In Ashville Are Better

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

Several phone calls yesterday evening to several homes where the "flu" had held number one place, having one or more of the family abed, tells us that sickness is on the wane with conditions better. John Hay suffering a sudden sick attack a few days ago is out and going again. John Sark, quite sick for the last several days, is reported yet abed but slowly improving. Mrs. Lynch is caring for him. The local school with many of the children absent for the last ten days because of sickness, is showing better in attendance, so Supt. Higley told us yesterday evening.

A daughter was born Sunday to Stephen and Mrs. Cook at the home in Harrison Township, so Dr. Gardner informed us yesterday. Ray Wagner and William Miller are both soldiering now, having enlisted at the Capital City barracks a few days since.

The members of the high school board, Dr. Chester Rockey, Stanley Beckett and Jesse Baum with Clerk W. E. Essick and Supt. Higley were in session at the school office yesterday evening transacting no business except the paying of bills, they told us.

Magician Anderson, South Bloomfield, entertained the Madison Parent-Teachers people at their meeting yesterday evening.

Miss Cleona Dunnick was back in the bank again yesterday after taking time out abed for a few days. Mrs. Stella Swoyer Martin substituting for her.

The village council in session yesterday evening with the official family all on the job, paid bills, all four of them, amounting to a total of $29.38. No other business of record was transacted. The "back of the hill toward the creek, 600 foot sewer line construction work" was up for a round table discussion and it was decided to further investigate sewer purchase prices and how best to proceed to get the work under way.

WINANT TO TAKE KENNEDY'S JOB

London Says Ex-Governor Of New Hampshire To Be F. D.'S Choice

LONDON, Jan. 21—John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and director of the International Labor Office, probably will succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as United States Ambassador to Britain, London circles predicted today.

On the basis of well-informed predictions from the United States, it was believed that Winant's appointment will be announced in the near future and that he will be assisted by a minister who will take charge of details of American material war aid to Britain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and director of the International Labor Office, is being mentioned in diplomatic circles again today as the possible choice of President Roosevelt to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as U. S. ambassador to Great Britain.

A staunch supporter of the administration's program, although a prominent member of the Republican party, Winant's name was first mentioned for the London post when Kennedy submitted his resignation to lead a drive to keep this country out of war.

These same circles said the president may appoint a minister to Britain to work with the new envoy. Britain last week designated Sir Gerald Campbell, high commissioner to Canada, as a minister to Washington.

Ohio, Cambridge reported 11 degrees early this morning. Akron 13, Cleveland 14, Toledo and Hayesville 17, Columbus and Cincinnati 19, and Dayton 22 degrees.

Three-Degree Temperature Prevails In Two Of Counties

By International News Service

A temporary respite from freezing temperatures was promised Ohioans today as the mercury once again climbed sluggishly from a three-degree low established last night in Geauga and Lake Counties.

Forecasters predicted constantly rising temperatures today and tonight, with continued mild temperatures Wednesday, possibly accompanied by cloudy skies or light rain. Thursday, however, the thermometer was expected to start downward again.

Generally, readings throughout the state ranged higher than the low established in northeastern

PART-TIME JOBS AVAILABLE FOR YOUNG MEN OF PICKAWAY COUNTY

Representative To Be At Cady's Office For Interviews

Number Of Other Openings To Be Available For Unemployed

Part-time jobs in drafting and surveying for 12 Pickaway County young men between the ages of 18 and 24 are now available as a result of a project worked out between Robert D. Royer, area supervisor for the National Youth Administration, and Chester B. Alsbach, Community Manager of the Scioto Farms Project, Atlanta.

The project has received the special attention of the National Youth Administration for Ohio because it provides work experience which is of prime importance for National Defense industries. According to reports from manufacturers and employment agencies, there is a heavy demand for draftsmen. The surveying experience is also of interest from the National Defense standpoint in that a great deal of construction work and improvements needed by the military forces call for experienced roadmen.

Should Apply

Pickaway County youth who are unemployed and who have had public school mechanical drawing and geometry may apply for these positions at the NYA headquarters in Mayor Cady's office in the City Hall, Circleville, on Wednesday mornings between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30. Harold Thomas, NYA youth counselor, will be glad to furnish full details about the jobs, the hours of work, and the rate of pay.

Youth who may find it more convenient to report at Washington C. H., will be able to see Mr. Thomas on Wednesday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 at the NYA headquarters over the Washington C. H. Record-Herald offices.

Surveying and drafting work will be under the supervision of Carney Wyrick, FSA district engineer, who has been assigned to the Scioto Farms Project at Atlanta. He has trained a number of young men in this kind of work and many have found full-time employment as a result of their work and experience under his supervision.

Two Clerical Jobs Open

Any young women between the ages of 18 and 24 who are unemployed, and who are qualified to type and take dictation may contact Mr. Thomas, as there will be two NYA clerical part-time positions available.

In addition to the above jobs, there will be a number of other openings shortly, as representatives of the National Youth Administration are now completing arrangements to employ approximately 75 to 100 Pickaway County young men and women. Any young man or woman who is unemployed and within the age group should see Mr. Thomas for complete details on the work opportunities to be available.

Anyone 16 or 17 years of age, who is a high school graduate, may apply also for NYA employment.

Health Conditions In Ashville Are Better

Ashville, Phone 79

Several phone calls yesterday evening to several homes where the "flu" had held number one place, having one or more of the family abed, tells us that sickness is on the wane with conditions better. John Hay suffering a sudden sick attack a few days ago is out and going again. John Sark, quite sick for the last several days, is reported yet abed but slowly improving. Mrs. Lynch is caring for him. The local school with many of the children absent for the last ten days because of sickness, is showing better in attendance, so Supt. Higley told us yesterday evening.

A daughter was born Sunday to Stephen and Mrs. Cook at the home in Harrison Township, so Dr. Gardner informed us yesterday. Ray Wagner and William Miller are both soldiering now, having enlisted at the Capital City barracks a few days since.

The members of the high school board, Dr. Chester Rockey, Stanley Beckett and Jesse Baum with Clerk W. E. Essick and Supt. Higley were in session at the school office yesterday evening transacting no business except the paying of bills, they told us.

Miss Cleona Dunnick was back in the bank again yesterday after taking time out abed for a few days. Mrs. Stella Swower Martin substituting for her.

The village council in session yesterday evening with the official family all on the job, paid bills, all four of them, amounting to a total of $29.38. No other business of record was transacted. The "back of the hill toward the creek, 600 foot sewer line construction work" was up for a round table discussion and it was decided to further investigate sewer purchase prices and how best to proceed to get the work under way.

London Says Ex-Governor Of New Hampshire To Be F. D.'S Choice

LONDON, Jan. 21—John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and director of the International Labor Office, probably will succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as United States Ambassador to Britain, London circles predicted today.

On the basis of well-informed predictions from the United States, it was believed that Winant's appointment will be announced in the near future and that he will be assisted by a minister who will take charge of details of American material war aid to Britain.

Winant has been mentioned frequently by British newspapers as a possible choice for the ambassadorial post.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and director of the International Labor Office, is being mentioned in diplomatic circles again today as the possible choice of President Roosevelt to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as U. S. ambassador to Great Britain.

A staunch supporter of the administration's program, although a prominent member of the Republican party, Winant's name was first mentioned for the London post when Kennedy submitted his resignation to lead a drive to keep this country out of war.

These same circles said the president may appoint a minister to Britain to work with the new envoy. Britain last week designated Sir Gerald Campbell, high commissioner to Canada, as a minister to Washington.

Ohio, Cambridge reported 11 degrees early this morning. Akron 13, Cleveland 14, Toledo and Hayesville 17, Columbus and Cincinnati 19, and Dayton 22 degrees.

All roads throughout the state were reported clear and open by the state highway department.
